

Airline bankruptcy feared in fuel crisis

By RICHARD WITKIN
New York Times Service

NEW YORK — Soaring increases in jet-fuel costs brought warnings from the airline industry Friday that it would face bankruptcies or need massive government subsidy unless sharp new fare boosts were authorized.

The head of Eastern Air Lines, Floyd D. Hall, suggested the need for two 5 per cent increases during 1974 plus a surcharge of 2 to 4 per cent that would be tied to fuel-price fluctuations.

Eastern lost about $50 million last year and estimates its 1973 fuel bill of about $115 million will double in 1974.

In an interview before a meeting with banks and other lenders to seek further easing of conditions on Eastern's loan agreements, Hall said:

"I'm sure the Civil Aeronautics Board doesn't want 12 Penn Centrals on its hands or a subsidy bill that comes to somewhere between $300 million and $1 billion."

Several other high-level industry executives agreed privately with Hall's judgment that the leap in fuel prices could put major carriers in serious jeopardy.

Yet there was an undercurrent of suspicion that the oil industry was taking unfair advantage of the current situation and using the fuel crisis to exact prices not necessarily justified by the actual supply-and-demand relationship.

Some airline executives resented it. Some owners thought the oil industry only partly justified, saying that jet-fuel prices had lagged behind the inflation level for some years and that the oil companies needed higher profits to finance the risk in developing alternate energy sources.

As for the airlines' clamor for fare boosts, there were questions among knowledgeable observers whether the heavier passenger loads carried on a curtailed flight schedule did not obviate the need for such large boosts.

Several airlines, including Eastern, have begun receiving notices from oil-company suppliers that the pricing clauses of existing contracts for jet fuel were being abrogated.

Charles J. Simons, Eastern's executive vice president, said that if it had to pay the so-called "spot price" to which the market price had climbed, that would mean a 200 per cent increase over the price in the contract.

The nation's airlines say they will go ahead with plans to cut about 700 flights and lay off more than 11,000 employees in January even though the federal government has increased their fuel allocation.

Most of the cuts will come Monday.

An Arctic storm roared across California Friday and left hundreds of persons stranded by snow, rain and mudslides.

Weather forecasters said no immediate end to the storm was in sight, and snow and rain showers were expected to continue through the weekend.

National Weather Service workers at Long Beach Airport said the storm had brought 1.73 inches of rain by 4 p.m. Friday, bringing the season's total to 4.47 inches.

Late Friday night a spectacular electrical storm sent lightning bolts dancing through the skies over the Long Beach area, and police reported at least three minor power failures.

In East Los Angeles, sheriff's deputies issued a signal for the southbound Santa Ana Freeway between Atlantic and Washington Boulevards.

Deputies said live electrical transmission lines had fallen on the freeway, and traffic was being rerouted.

The storm brought a rash of calls to law enforcement agencies and newspapers when flames from controlled burnoffs at oil refineries in Santa Fe Springs and La Mirada were reflected off low clouds giving the appearance of a major fire.

In Torrance, eight houses in a low-lying area were flooded with water up to three feet deep. The flooding, in the 18500 block of Kingsdale Ave., came from a nearby storm drain construction site.

A construction worker said drainage pumps were on hand at the site, but they weren't turned on Thursday night because children had stolen the batteries.

Six cars were abandoned in Carson at the intersection of Sepulveda Boulevard and Figueroa Street when they stalled in the flooded intersection.

Heavy snows in the foothills and mountains paralyzed auto travel, and highway patrolmen warned motorists of blizzard conditions in the San Bernardino Mountains.

Inland freeways connecting Los Angeles with other regions were all closed by snow and ice.

'Has no right,' says Ervin, will go to court

Nixon rejects subpoenas for tapes

By HELEN THOMAS

SAN CLEMENTE (UPI) — President Nixon Friday refused to comply with Senate Watergate committee subpoenas to surrender several hundred White House documents and 500 taped conversations.

Committee Chairman Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., said he would go into court to force the President to turn over the materials relating to the committee's investigation of the burglary at Democratic National Headquarters at the Watergate complex June 17, 1972.

In a letter to Ervin rejecting the subpoenas, Nixon called them "an unconstitutional usurpation of power" by Congress.

But Ervin, reached at his home in Morgantown, N.C., charged that Nixon had no constitutional right to refuse to comply with the subpoenas and that his committee would take the matter to court.

Informed by UPI of Nixon's letter, Ervin said: "My reaction is this. There is nothing in the Constitution that gives the President any power to withhold from an authorized congressional committee evidence relating to campaign activities or evidence of criminal wrongdoing by his aides.

"We're not asking any information that he received in confidence from anybody for the purpose of performing in a lawful manner his constitutional duties."

Asked if he would sue Nixon to force him to comply, Ervin replied: "Yes."

White House officials said the committee's demand for the extensive list of documents and tapes was "extraordinary, incredible," and that it "clearly reflects a partisan attitude on the part of the Watergate committee... and quite frankly a total lack of respect and regard and understanding of the constitutional processes and separation of powers."

These officials also said that Ervin's reaction to Nixon's letter "states clearly the partisan attitudes that have now permeated the committee."

Later, Ervin's office in Washington issued a statement in which he said:

"The committee has no desire to gain access to any confidential communications had between the President and his aides or had among the President's aides for the purpose of enabling the President to perform in a lawful manner his constitutional or legal duties.

"All the committee is desirous of obtaining is evidence in the possession of the White House which tends to show political activities on the part of the President and his aides and on the part of the Committee to Re-elect the President and information in the possession of the President of criminal violations on the part of his aides."

In his letter to Ervin, Nixon said:

"To produce the material you now seek will unquestionably destroy any vestige of confidentiality of presidential communications, thereby irreparably impairing the constitutional functions of the office of the presidency.

"Neither the judiciary nor the Congress could survive a similar power by the executive branch to rummage through their files and confidential processes."

"UNDER the circumstances, I can only view your subpoenas as an overt attempt to intrude into the executive to a degree that constitutes an unconstitutional usurpation of power."

Under a court order, the White House had been ordered to turn over the tapes and documents to the committee by 10 a.m. Friday. But the committee extended the deadline until "the end of the day" at the White House's request late Friday morning.

The committee, in three subpoenas delivered to the White House Dec. 19, asked for more than 400 documents and official data, including nearly 500 personal presidential conversations.

In rejecting the demand, Nixon said he was doing so "to protect the fundamental structure of our government" — the

Set your clocks to save energy

What's the last thing you want to do before you sleep tonight?

Whatever else you answer, don't forget to reach for your clocks and watches and put them on daylight savings time.

That means set them an hour fast. At 2 a.m. standard time they are to read 3 a.m. to be correct.

That means they'll be in time with the rest of the country which switches, as of 2 a.m. Sunday Southland time, to energy-saving time.

The switch, which used to be scheduled as "Spring forward, Fall back," moves forward to this month at the dictate of Congress, which has declared the new time mandatory in the continental United States until October, 1975.

The White House has claimed the switch could cut back the demand for heating and electricity by as much as three per cent, particularly in the northern regions of the country. It says this savings would result because people will not need to turn on their lights as early at night.

The change will not affect Hawaii, the Virgin Islands, Puerto Rico or most of Indiana. Those areas were exempted from the switch at the order of Congress.

10 to 15-year energy shortage seen

By ROBERT F. BUCKHORN

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Energy chief William E. Simon predicted Friday that the United States would be faced with an energy shortage for at least 10 to 15 years.

Simon, head of the Federal Energy Office, predicted that the U.S. energy crisis would end only when the country develops new sources of oil and power, such as solar and geothermal power — "and that is 10 to 15 years off in the future."

"We have been a nation of energy wastrels, and this day is over because the day of cheap energy is over," Simon said in an interview.

The Air Transport Association meantime said its per-gallon cost of jet fuel for some airlines has risen more than 50 per cent over 1973.

"Fuel costs are now in excess of $1 million a day over $7 and rising," said William E. Jackman, a spokesman for the ATA.

In other energy related developments:

—President Nixon summoned budget director Roy Ash to San Clemente Friday to discuss the impact of the energy crisis on the budget. Sources said Ash would work with Nixon over the weekend on the energy crisis and "several other major programs" expected to get final presidential approval.

—Major Swedish oil companies announced they would raise prices of crude oil by up to 175 per cent pending government approval.

—Sources in Brussels said the oil crisis was seriously threatening the "Nixon round" of talks on liberalizing world trade.

—Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., said a White House source assured him the numerous tankers anchored off American ports were not laden with gasoline but home heating oil with no place to unload their cargoes.

—Robert T. Pollock, president of the American

Transit Association, charged that the Office of Management and Budget has dictated a halt to the start of any new rapid transit systems. He said instead an additional $9 billion should be given to mass transit.

Despite the rising price of jet fuel, the American Petroleum Institute released statistics showing that jet fuel supplies stood at a near record supply—28 million barrels for the week ended Dec. 21.

L.A.-bound train rams truck, 2 injured

NEWARK (AP) — The Los Angeles-bound Amtrak Coast Starlight smashed into a truck loaded with wrecked autos Friday, derailing 10 cars and two locomotives that zig-zagged wildly in a cabbage field.

Two train attendants and two of the 175 passengers were hospitalized with minor injuries from the crash about 25 miles south of San Francisco.

It was the second derailment in a week for the Starlight. The train, which runs between Seattle and Los Angeles, derailed last Friday near Anderson, Calif., injuring 84 people.

"There was a screech and a crash. It was awful," said field worker Jose Mendez. "I looked up and saw this train twisted around and cars lying around."

Melvin Brooks, 29, was working near the scene of the accident.

"That truck came across the tracks and the train was barreling along and went right through it," he said. "It split the truck in half and tossed cars in the air."

The 205-ton engine, which fire officials said was traveling at 45 miles per hour at the time, ended up tilted at about a 15-degree angle beside the track.

Newark police officer N.G. Olson said the driver of the truck, Elmer Herbert, 34, of Fremont, told them he didn't see the train coming. He said he was watching some men working in a cabbage patch beside the track.

Police said there was no fire, although 3,500 gallons of diesel fuel gushed from a locomotive into a nearby flood control ditch that spills into the bay. A Coast Guard pollution control team was on the scene.

The train skidded about 1,000 feet past the point of impact and tore up the track along that stretch. Railroad spokesmen on the scene said it would take at least 24 hours to clean up the cars and repair the track.

The remaining passengers were loaded aboard the five undamaged cars and taken to San Jose, an Amtrak spokesman said. Passengers wishing to continue to Los Angeles were given rides in chartered buses.

Combined News Services

Bernard L. Barker, the right side of his face paralyzed from what he said was exposure to cold while serving his Watergate sentence, was freed Friday to await the outcome of his appeal.

Barker, one of the five Watergate defendants who pleaded guilty to burglary, conspiracy and wiretapping in the break-in of Democratic Party headquarters, could barely speak because of the paralysis.

He said a doctor at Eglin Air Force Base in Florida, where he has been imprisoned since early November, diagnosed the ailment as Bell's Palsy caused by exposure to cold while Barker was digging a ditch at Eglin a week or 10 days ago.

Officials at Eglin could not be reached immediately for comment.

A prison official said Friday night that a civilian doctor examined Barker on Dec. 28 and diagnosed his problem as Bell's Palsy. "The doctor said it was a side effect of a head cold and it didn't require hospitalization," said Marion Lacy, assistant prison superintendent.

Barker was excused from work because of his ailment, Lacy said. Prisoners normally perform manual labor around the facility.

Temperatures in the area ranged from the 40s to the 60s seven to 10 days ago, the period Barker said he suffered exposure. Wind velocity, however, could have lowered skin temperatures. Merck's Manual, a medical reference book, defines Bell's Palsy as a special form of "mononeuritis" — an inflammatory or degenerative condition of a single nerve. It is characterized by a distortion of the face due to a lesion change in tissue structure of the facial nerve.

Respects

More than 400 of the top names in country music paid their final respects Friday to singing cowboy Tex Ritter at a massive, white-columned church on the outskirts of Nashville, Tenn., the town he helped make known as Music City, U.S.A.

Ritter, who died Wednesday of a heart attack just 10 days short of his 68th birthday, was eulogized by the pastor conducting the services as "an unspoiled American, a patriot in every sense of the word."

Vice President Gerald Ford will be installed as the first member of his high school's Hall of Fame when he makes his first visit to his home town of Grand Rapids, Mich., since taking office.

During the Jan. 17 visit, Ford will attend a special program in his honor at South Middle School, formerly South High.

His portrait will be unveiled during ceremonies honoring him as the first member of the school's gallery of distinguished graduates.

Crooner

Ailing crooner Bing Crosby missed the rain-delayed opening round of his Pro-Am golf tournament at Pebble Beach Friday but continued in satisfactory condition at Peninsula Hospital.

Crosby was admitted to the hospital Monday for treatment of pleurisy, an inflammation of the lining around the lungs.

Batman

An original Batman comic book has been acquired by a San Francisco dealer from a 42-year-old literary scholar.

Jon B. Campbell, owner of the Golden Gate Comic Art Shop, said he purchased the Detective Comics issue of April 1939 in "fine condition" and is offering it for resale for "about $2,000."

Original owner of the comic book refused to be identified. He said he bought the comic himself at the age of eight and it was later stored in the attic of his family's home in New England along with 30 other assorted comic books until found recently by his children.

Campbell's chain of Comic Art Shops sold a copy of the first Superman comic book, dated June 1938, for $1,800 in April. That was the highest price paid for a comic book, and the Action No. 1 issue was later appraised at $3,000.

Waiting

Soviet author Alexander Solzhenitsyn expects to be arrested for publishing his new book, "The Gulag Archipelago," on the Soviet secret police and prison system, three French lawyers who visited him in Moscow said Friday in Paris.

Lawyer Jean-Michel Perard told a news conference that Solzhenitsyn said he might be prosecuted on charges of violating the world copyright convention or of violating Article 70 of Soviet law that makes writing or publishing anti-Soviet material punishable.

Faker

Author Clifford Irving, who faked an autobiography of billionaire Howard Hughes, was transferred from federal prison in Danbury, Conn. to a halfway house in New York City Friday. He thus became eligible for limited freedom prior to his scheduled parole but had to go to court to gain the privilege.

Uncharacteristically wan and rumpled, Irving was brought to the Manhattan Community Treatment Center on the West Side. Inmates there can apply for daytime leaves and weekend passes.

Irving's wife Edith is in Switzerland, where she was awaiting retrial of a conviction for her role in the $850,000 autobiography caper — one of the great literary hoaxes of the century.

Tumor

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., is suffering from a "pinhead" tumor of the bladder and has been undergoing x-ray treatments since the first week in November, his doctor said Friday in Washington.

Humphrey's personal physician, Dr. Edgar Bertram, said "we think we have it stopped" but added it was uncertain whether the tumor is malignant.

Humphrey, 62-year old former vice president, was admitted to Bethesda Naval Hospital early Friday for tests but Bertram said the Minnesota senator will "go home in a couple of days."

He has given up thought of joining police even though height requirement is now abolished.

Paul Petzoldt and 24 climbers including the first woman ever to make a winter ascent of Wyoming's Grand Teton Peak used ropes and skis Friday to reach a base camp at the foot of the 13,770-foot mountain.

The climbers were led down Teton's slopes by the 65-year-old Petzoldt, who told rangers by two-way radio he was happy nine members of his group reached the summit. Petzoldt said he would hold a banquet in celebration today.

'Law, order' Saxbe sworn in

Combined News Services

WASHINGTON — William B. Saxbe, calling himself "a law-and-order man," was sworn in Friday as President Nixon's fourth attorney general in five years. Saxbe, 57, took the oath of office at a ceremony in the Justice Department's Great Hall packed with more than 400 well-wishers from his home state. He became the nation's 70th attorney general. In remarks after the swearing-in, the blunt-speaking Ohio Republican said Americans over the past several years had "lost a great deal of respect for law" but promised during his tenure to "bring credit to the law" and to leave the department "better than I have found it." Meantime Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, who has called for President Nixon to resign, was sworn in to office to replace Saxbe for the remaining year of his Senate term.

IRS seeks Vesco taxes

WASHINGTON — The Internal Revenue Service is seeking back taxes of more than $800,000 from financier Robert Vesco and $49 million from Standard Oil of Indiana, according to U.S. Tax Court records. The IRS claims Vesco grossly underpaid his federal tax bill in 1971 — paying only $52,441 on a reported income of $111,712 when, according to the IRS, he had an actual income of about $1.2 million and a tax liability of about $827,000. In addition, the tax agency attached an unusual 5 per cent penalty for "intentional disregard" of the tax code.

$200,000 robbery

NEW YORK — Three bandits posing as telephone repairmen stole $200,000 in U.S. currency from a cargo building at Kennedy Airport Friday, then eluded police roadblocks in a lightning-fast escape. The thieves pistol-whipped one employee and held about 20 others at gunpoint during the robbery. The bandits, wearing hard hats and work clothes, walked into the office at the Alitalia Airlines cargo building, asked, "Where's the telephone panel?" then drew guns and said, "this is a stickup."

Price-fix settlement

CHICAGO — Checks totaling more than $10 million were mailed Friday to about 4,000 retail and wholesale pharmacies around the country as their share in a settlement of a 1969 class-action suit against five of the nation's largest drug manufacturers for alleged price-fixing.

Baby found, teen held

AMARILLO, Tex. — A teen-ager accused of kidnaping a 15-month-old boy early this week in Las Vegas was arrested Friday as she and the baby stepped from a commercial bus. The suspect, Sharon Lee Bancheau, 18, was named in federal warrants charging her with abducting John Glen Lawrence, son of a North Las Vegas, Nev., couple, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Lawrence. The boy was taken last Monday, apparently while Miss Bancheau baby-sat for him. Miss Bancheau told police she had taken the baby because he was not getting "proper care" from his parents. Three of the Lawrence's other children had died in childbirth or of disease.

INTERNATIONAL

Cal. girl charged in gun 'plot'

LONDON — British authorities announced Friday they were charging an American girl and two male friends in an arms conspiracy and seized a second unidentified American girl for questioning about international terrorism. There were rumors four or five terrorist groups were in the British capital. But sources said it was not yet known whether they formed part of established cells, whether they had been sent singly to mark and attack assassination targets, or whether they were in transit to other countries. The attorney general's office said it had decided that Allison Thompson, 18, of Santa Barbara, Calif., and her two friends should be prosecuted for offenses of conspiracy relating to the possession of firearms.

Parliament recalled

LONDON — The government recalled Parliament from its holiday recess Friday to discuss Britain's worsening economic crisis amid speculation of early elections. New peace talks were scheduled in the coal-mining industry but another labor dispute in the railways remained deadlocked. The crisis sparked renewed speculation that Prime Minister Edward Heath may call early parliamentary general elections in a bid for a national mandate to deal with the unions. Defense Secretary Lord Carrington, chairman of Heath's governing Conservative Party, said he is against an early election "but it may be that one will be forced upon us."

Pepsi exec seized

BUENOS AIRES — Kidnapers seized a Pepsi-Cola Co. executive Friday in the third strike in a month at American firms operating in Argentina. Police identified the latest victim as Douglas Gordon Roberts, 46, a native Argentine and a general administrative official for Pepsi-Cola. Roberts became the second kidnap victim in Argentina this year and is the sixth believed to be still held captive.

Liberalization pledge

MADRID — Premier Carlos Arias Navarro pledged his new Spanish government to political liberalization Friday but warned that it will uphold order with "severity and calmness." Arias delivered the statement after his radically revamped cabinet had been sworn in at Generalissimo Francisco Franco's palace and held its first formal meeting with Franco presiding. Only hours before the ceremony, a bomb exploded in a Barcelona police station in the first known anti-government violence since the assassination of Prime Minister Luis Carrero Blanco two weeks ago.

Chile-Dow pact

SANTIAGO — The new military government of Chile and the Dow Chemical Co. signed an agreement Friday that returns to the company all assets seized in 1972 by the government of the late President Salvador Allende. The companies involved are Dow Quimica Chilena SA, a polystyrene operation located in Santiago, and Petroquimica-Dow SA, owned 70 per cent by Dow and 30 per cent by two Chilean government agencies. Allende, the first elected Marxist president in Latin America, was overthrown by the military late last year.

Irish unity setback

BELFAST — Brian Faulkner, head of the newly formed coalition government in Northern Ireland, suffered a major political setback Friday when his own Protestant political party turned down a proposal for cooperation with the Catholic south. The Unionist Party which Faulkner heads, voted 454-374 in a party conference to reject the yet to be formed Council of Ireland. The council was to have been one of the stepping stones toward peace in Northern Ireland as a consultative body between the Irish Republic and Northern Ireland.

Vet check logjam said unblocked

By WALT MURRAY
Staff Writer

A crash attempt by the Veterans Administration to get thousands of months-late benefits checks to ex-servicemen attending Southland colleges appeared to be achieving success Friday.

Emmett Brasseux, assistant regional director of the VA office in West Los Angeles, said the backlog of 5,000 checks existing a month ago had been reduced to 1,000.

"The problem is now under control and we're optimistic it won't happen again," he said.

Long Beach State University officials who took a telephone poll of 50 ex-servicemen with chronic benefits problems said most of the students they contacted had received checks.

Administrators at local junior colleges said veterans there were beginning to report getting checks.

But they said the delayed checks—some for as long ago as September—had come too late for a few veterans who have already dropped out of school.

President Nixon ordered the regional VA office to work through the holidays to clear up the backlog.

He acted Dec. 22 after receiving a telegram from LBSU President Stephen Horn, who said that the plight of some veterans with chronic benefits problems was becoming serious.

Sen. Alan Cranston, chairman of the Senate veterans subcommittee on education, had already said he would hold hearings to investigate what he called a "monstrous foul-up."

Reporters for the Independent Press-Telegram's Action Line said they'd received about 100 complaints about VA benefits since September. That was more complaints than Action Line had ever received about any government agency, they said.

Among other ramifications of the foul-up, VA regional director Gordon Elliott took an "indefinite administrative leave" Dec. 26, and a VA troubleshooter from Washington took his place.

Although hundreds of the 6,000 veterans at Long Beach State University had some difficulties receiving their checks this fall, officials of the college's veterans affairs office said there were about 50 "chronic nonpayment cases."

Frank Noffke, a college counselor who advises the office, said that 21 of 25 veterans reached by phone after the holidays had recently received checks.

One veteran's check was hand-delivered and several other students got telegrams or phone calls that their money was waiting for them—in cash—at the West Los Angeles office.

At Cypress College, where veterans coordinators of 12 Orange County colleges met Dec. 21 to call for emergency legislation to straighten out the mess, administrator Bernard Hoff said few of the 68 vets with serious problems had reported getting checks.

He said that many vets might not immediately report receipt of checks, however.

One veteran reported that a VA worker hand-delivered his cash. Later he received a benefits check for the same period in the mail.

"Some of our students were in desperate situations," Hoff said. "One ex-Marine was evicted from his apartment because he couldn't pay the rent. His check finally came at the same time he got a notice that his van was going to be repossessed."

Unlike LBSU and Long Beach City College, Cypress had no emergency loan fund for its veterans.

LBCC's emergency fund fell short of the need, however.

Becky Thomas, a clerk in the veterans affairs office at LBCC's Liberal Arts Campus, said the college's loan fund ran out in November, partly because vets who borrowed money earlier still couldn't pay it back.

But LBCC veterans were beginning to report receiving their checks, just like Cypress and LBSU, she said.

John G. Miller, the Washington VA official who took charge at the West Los Angeles office, said that earlier reports that the snafu had been primarily a computer error were false.

He said the problem began in September when the VA began paying veterans two-month advance checks that were supposed to be waiting for them when they began fall semester classes.

What followed was lack of communication with campus veterans affairs offices about how the new process worked, duplication of effort in processing forms and makeshift efforts to solve the resulting chaos.

Long Beach, Calif., Sat., Jan. 5, 1974. INDEPENDENT PRESS-TELEGRAM

The VA lost control of the situation and it snowed. The problems wouldn't be repeated. They recommended that Miller and other VA officials said they believe troubles with their benefits checks call the West Los Angeles office directly or go to the veterans affairs offices on their college campuses.

Roll into the street?

In May I purchased a mobile home and moved into a space at Lakewood Mobile Home Estates, 12550 E. Carson St., Hawaiian Gardens. My wife and 17-year-old daughter are living with me. On Dec. 3 I received an eviction notice from the managers stating that all residents are required to be 21 years or older. I was given 60 days to vacate. I called the owner and he said that I could stay if my daughter left. I think this is a violation of my civil rights to force me to break up my family when we were allowed to move in in the first place with the approval of the management. Could ACTION LINE help? J.S., Hawaiian Gardens.

The problem is not simply that your daughter lives with you but that her behavior is objectionable to many other residents of the park, according to co-owner Melvin Guthman. He said you had been warned several times about her conduct but that nothing has been done. Guthman said you have been offered the alternative of remaining in the park if you will send your daughter to live with a nearby relative for the several months until she finishes school and carries out her wedding plans. He explained the park management is very concerned about the well-being of all its residents and they must base decisions such as the one involving you on "the most good for the most people" principle. If you plan to keep your daughter with you, he said, the eviction date will be extended within reason to give you time to find another place and move.

Benefits

I am a terminal cancer patient and haven't enough funds for my burial. I was employed by the Rock Island Railroad for 30 years before retiring in 1952. I receive a pension from the Railroad Retirement Board in Chicago. I have written to the board several times inquiring about death benefits but have not received an answer. Could ACTION LINE please help me? F.S., Garden Grove.

A spokesman for the Railroad Retirement Board said that because your wife is alive and will be entitled to a widow's annuity your estate will not be eligible for a lump-sum death benefit. Death benefits are payable under the Railroad Retirement Act if there is no survivor immediately eligible to receive an annuity at the time the retiree dies. We have also sent you information on how to join the nonprofit Tri-County Memorial Funeral Society, P.O. Box 114, Midway City, Calif. 92655. Low cost funerals, both conventional and cremation, may be arranged through the society.

Property settlement

I rented a home with a couple in August and because of many aggravations I moved out Dec. 16, leaving my refrigerator and china cupboard behind. When I went back for them, I wasn't permitted in. They also owe me $103 for which I am holding a diamond that belongs to them. What can I do to get my refrigerator, cupboard and money and return the diamond to them? J.E.R., Lakewood.

You may have to go to court to work out this swap, but there's one thing you can try short of that. You can phone the police in the city where you were living and ask them to meet you at your old home to keep the peace while you try to negotiate with your ex-roommates. The police will not be able to help you get your property back — this is a civil, not a criminal matter — but they can see that the situation stays calm while you are there. If that doesn't solve the problem, you can sue in small claims court for the value of your possessions and money up to a total of $500. The small claims court filing fee is $2 and the marshal will serve the subpoenas for a small charge. If the value is more than $500, you may want to hire an attorney to sue for recovery of your property and money. If your income is low enough to qualify, a legal aid attorney may be able to help you.

No song and dance

Could ACTION LINE find out where I can hire a three-piece musical group to play at a wedding reception? I am interested in a group that will play the old favorites of the 40's and 50's as well as the music of the 70's. What is the minimum length of time they will play and what do they charge? Mrs. J.F., Lakewood.

ACTION LINE found three agencies that have three-piece musical groups available to play the music you want. They are listed in the yellow pages under "Orchestras & Bands." Check with: Ray Eherle Combo, 4865 Coldbrook Ave., Lakewood, phone 425-4441; Halle Music Studio, 5484 Atlantic Ave., phone 428-4062; and Olinger Music Productions, 11572 Weatherly Road, Los Alamitos, phone 431-5013. Prices and minimum playing time range from $70 for two hours to $135 for three hours.

2 L.A. Harbor officials resign

By JACK O. BALDWIN
Maritime Editor

Airline baggage containing approximately 220 pounds of Las Vegas-style poker chips appears to figure prominently in the sudden resignation of the president of the Los Angeles Harbor Board and a top staff aide.

Mayor Tom Bradley accepted the resignation of the 47-year old Shanghai-born John Ya-Ou Chu, president of the five-man port governing board, Thursday. Bradley said Friday he was turning over his files on the matter to the city attorney for review.

Friday afternoon, William Chernus, 57, traffic manager and director of trade development, submitted his resignation to the Harbor Department's new acting general manager after he allegedly was told "to resign or be fired."

Both Chu and Chernus told the Independent Press-Telegram they were innocent of any wrongdoing involved in an argument at Los Angeles International Airport concerning over-weight charges for the poker chip shipment.

CHU submitted his resignation to Mayor Bradley stating the press of personnel business as the reason for leaving the commission. Chernus, in submitting his resignation to Acting General Manager Donald Walsh, gave no explanation for his action.

Chernus explained the sequence of events leading up to his and Chu's resignation this way: "Commissioner Chu said he had been requested by a customer of the Port of Los Angeles in Hong Kong to assist a friend who would be leaving Los Angeles aboard a Korean Air Lines plane. Neither Mr. Chu nor I could meet the gentleman whom we expected to be a Japanese businessman. I asked an assistant in my division to rendezvous with the visitor and to assist him in whatever manner he might.

"WHEN my assistant met the man at the airport he turned out to be not a Japanese business man but an American rather shabbily dressed in his early 20's. He was allowed 44 pounds of free baggage but was overweight by about 220 pounds. He argued with the airline attendant when he was told he could not ship the excess baggage C.O.D. and would have to pay for it in advance if he wanted to get it on the plane he was about to board.

"He told my assistant the overweight baggage contained poker chips he had purchased in Los Angeles to be used in a gambling school in Japan that offered courses in how gambling is conducted in Las Vegas."

Chernus' assistant, who asked not to be identified, said he did not actually see the poker chips and had no way of knowing whether or not the chips were actual chips used in the Nevada gambling mecca.

"The American eventually agreed to pay approximately $250 in charges for the excess weight and boarded the plane after saying goodbye to my assistant at the boarding gate," Chernus said.

HIS assistant said he never was asked to seek a reduction in overcharges nor did he ask the airline to lower the charges. Chernus' assistant told the I.P.T. Friday night.

Walsh, former Director of Planning and Research for the Harbor Department, Wednesday was named as second deputy general manager and designated as temporary general manager by the Board of Harbor Commissioners. In asking for Chernus' resignation he claimed he had been involved in the "same kind of thing" that led to the abrupt resignation of Chu the previous day.

SEVERAL city council members voiced concern over Walsh's move and Councilman John Ferraro, chairman of the council's Industry and Transportation Committee, said he would seek a full investigation into the matter.

Nixon vetoes transit bill

SAN CLEMENTE (AP)—President Nixon announced Friday he has pocket vetoed a bill amending the urban mass transportation act, arguing the measure would work against improving the flexibility of transit systems at a time of gasoline shortages.

"Unfortunately, this bill has evolved so as to become an anti-transit measure," Nixon wrote in a memorandum of disapproval.

The President complained that while the bill would allow buses bought with federal urban transit funds to be used for chartered services, it would not repeal a prohibition against such use of buses bought with federal highway funds.

"It would thus undermine one of the central achievements of the Federal Aid Highway Act of 1973, the provision giving greater flexibility to states and communities in meeting their transportation problems," he wrote.

Announcing he would ask Congress to meet quickly to meet his objections to the vetoed bill, Nixon said:

"It is essential that our communities' mass transit companies can use their buses to produce badly needed charter revenues, and I will continue to press for this balanced flexibility."

Nixon at the same time signed into law two other measures completing action on all bills passed by Congress in 1973. They were a $1.7 billion supplemental appropriation and amendments to the Water Pollution Control Act distributing federal grants to the states for sewage treatment plants on the basis of need rather than population.

U.S. automobile sales drop badly for month

DETROIT (UPI) — U.S. automakers Friday tallied new car sales figures that showed the industry suffered its worst December since the 1970 recession as the swing away from the big cars strengthened in the face of soaring gasoline prices. Small gas-saving models remained in short supply.

One industry analyst said the December sales would be down as much as 20 per cent from December, 1972, marking the third straight monthly sales decline. He said new car sales probably would not reach 600,000 — the worst record since the industry delivered just 425,352 cars in December, 1970.

Only American Motors reported its sales figures Friday. General Motors, Ford and Chrysler said the long holiday delayed the paperwork. The "big three" planned to wait until Monday to make their figures public.

At AMC, smallest of the U.S. automakers, sales were up 28 per cent in December, further evidence that its reliance on small cars helped it buck the slump affecting its competitors. AMC recorded its best sales mark in 10 years in 1973.

The three-month slump, fueled by Americans afraid to get caught with big cars if gasoline is rationed and unable to get enough small models, wasn't enough to keep automakers from setting their third straight yearly record with just over 9.6 million new car sales in 1973.

Together with an estimated 1.76 million imports, total sales in the United States last year were about 11.4 million cars, almost one-half million below estimates of just six months ago.

Among the top-selling imports, Datsun sales were up 22 per cent in 1973 and Mazda, the only rotary-engine car, increased its sales by 106 per cent. Volkswagen reported a 1.9 per cent decline, partly because of shortages of certain models, but still remained the top-selling import.

Dealers report they can't keep display models of some compacts and sub-compacts — on the showroom floors. Imported car dealers said buyers will take whatever models are available in hopes of getting better than 25 miles per gallon.

Increase in unemployment rate not tied to fuel crisis

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the full effects of the energy crisis yet to be felt, the nation's unemployment rate rose significantly in December from 4.7 to 4.9 per cent, the government said Friday.

The increase in the jobless rate equaled November's jump and resulted in the biggest two-month rise in three years.

Government analysts attributed the increase more to the general cooling of the economy rather than to the effects of the fuel shortage.

Data for the Bureau of Labor Statistics' job report was gathered during the first week of December, before thousands of announced layoffs in the auto, airline, construction recreation industries took effect.

The bureau said the number of people out of work increased by 170,000 last month following a jump of 200,000 in November. Total unemployment reached 4.4 million, when adjustments for seasonal employment factors were considered. That number may exceed 5.3 million when job layoffs caused by the fuel shortage accelerate.

Nixon administration economists have forecast a rise to at least 6 per cent unemployment later this year when the full impact of the energy crunch is felt on the economy.

A year ago unemployment stood at 5.1 per cent of the work force.

Nixon's economic advisers had predicted that unemployment would drop to 4.5 per cent by the end of 1973.

Navy seeking sea animals

By GIL BAILEY
Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Navy has quietly asked for 311 sea mammals including 275 dolphins for experimentation and training during the next two years under the provisions of the Marine Mammal Protection Act.

The Navy in hearings before the Marine Fisheries Service denied that the sea mammals would be used for combat-related purposes or training. However, there have been persistent reports that dolphins were used during the Vietnam war for surveillance of North Vietnamese harbors.

HOWEVER, the Navy did say that it wants to use additional species of dolphins and to experiment with the California sea lion and grey seal over the next two years. The experiments will be conducted at Navy Undersea Center in San Diego where dolphin experiments have been underway since the early 1960s.

In the hearing before the National Marine Fisheries Service the Navy said it planned no intentional harm or damage to the animals. It also said it rejected the concept that the mammals should be used in espionage or combat-related roles.

Instead the Navy said only 84 of the mammals are intended for captivity while the rest will be released after being tagged visually or with radio equipment.

The Navy included some of the following kinds of work it hopes to perform with the sea mammals:

- Population studies;
- Studies of mammals' biological sonar and sensory physiology;
- Breeding colonies;
- Conditioning of marine mammals to perform useful tasks in the open sea.

In the past the Navy has concentrated on the Atlantic bottlenose dolphin. It acquired 15 bottlenose dolphins in 1973 to add to the experiments which started almost a decade ago.

Under the Marine Mammals Protection Act the mammals can be used for scientific studies with approval of the Marine Fisheries Service.

The public record on the hearing has been held open until Jan. 13 and the service will make a decision soon thereafter.

ORIGINALLY, an environmental group, Project Monitor, had objected to the Navy request, noting the request was stamped "secret." The Navy said the secret classification was a mistake and denied any military use of the mammals.

Project Monitor then dropped its protest.

The Navy's use of mammals in Vietnam waters first was reported in 1972 by Buck Lanier, military editor of the Long Beach Independent Press-Telegram.

He reported the dolphins had been used to knock enemy swimmers out of the water and for harbor surveillance.

U.S. gasoline stocks increase in December

NEW YORK (AP) — Stocks of gasoline rose slightly at the end of December, but were still less than the nation's gasoline inventories at this time in 1971 and 1972, according to American Petroleum Institute figures released Friday.

Heating and diesel oil stocks, on the other hand, were far above 1971 and 1972 levels, despite the Arab oil embargo.

Industry spokesmen say this is because the winter so far has been warmer than anticipated, and conservation measures have been effective. The result, they say, has been a stockpiling of heating oil produced in large quantities in the fall in anticipation of a cold winter.

Jet fuel inventories also were above 1971 and 1972 levels, apparently because of airline flight cutbacks, an API spokesman said. The airlines said the cutbacks were necessary because of fuel shortages.

The API statistical summary for the week ending Dec. 28 showed that U.S. auto gasoline stocks increased to 207 million barrels from 203 million barrels the previous week.

The inventory is enough for 31 days of driving for the nation's 117 million vehicles, which consume about 5.7 million barrels daily. The Dec. 28 figure compares with 210 million barrels of gasoline on hand the last week of December, 1972 and 222 million barrels stockpiled the same week in 1971. There are 42 gallons in a barrel.

Nationwide stocks of distillate oils, which include both diesel and home heating fuel, were at 203.5 million barrels, up from 203 million the week before, API said.

Distillate stocks for the last week in December, 1972, were 159 million barrels and they were at 194 million barrels in 1971.

The API, an industry organization, does not distinguish in its distillate statistics between heating and diesel oil. Truck drivers have protested higher diesel oil prices and short supplies which the industry has blamed on the nation's energy problems.

Shipments of Arab oil said above last year

NEW YORK (UPI) — Shipments of oil from Arab countries may actually be running above last year's levels despite claims of an oil export boycott, WINS radio reported Friday.

Adam Powell, a reporter for the Group W station, said that the British firm of Lloyd's of London contains 39 tankers took on oil and departed from Saudi Arabian ports in the first four days of December, carrying loads up to 39 per cent above last year.

Powell said for the 11 days ending Dec. 9, 41 tankers left Kuwait, up 39 per cent from the same 11 days last year.

CIA objects to revealing files

By LESLEY OELSNER

WASHINGTON — The director of the Central Intelligence Agency told a federal judge this week that "highly classified" intelligence information might be "leaked" to the public if the agency complied with the judge's recent order to make that information available to a limited group of security experts.

One of those experts — and the only one named specifically in the judge's order — is Morton H. Halperin, a former consultant to the National Security Council and a former deputy assistant secretary of Defense.

HALPERIN'S telephone was tapped for 21 months in 1969-71, while he was an assistant to Henry A. Kissinger on the council and afterward, as part of a wiretap operation that President Nixon said later was an attempt to stop leaks of secret information to the press. Kissinger has said that the conversations overheard on Halperin's phone "never cast any doubt" on Halperin's "loyalty or discretion."

The judge, Albert V. Bryan Jr. of the U.S. District Court in Alexandria, Va., had issued the order two weeks ago at the request of the publisher and the authors of a book about the CIA. The agency is trying to censor the book.

THE PUBLISHER and the authors contended that they needed the opinions and advice of experts on security matters in order to prepare their lawsuit contesting the censorship attempt. William E. Colby, the CIA director, made his assertion in a three-page affidavit submitted to the court Wednesday along with a motion by the government asking Bryan to reconsider his ruling.

EXCLUSIVE N.Y. TIMES SERVICE

He asked for a private hearing before Bryan, "in order to explain the basis of my concern."

He said in his affidavit that disclosure of the information would "result in the compromise of certain currently active intelligence sources and intelligence gathering operations which would cause serious harm to the national defense interests of the U.S. and seriously will disrupt the conduct of this country's foreign relations."

Melvin L. Wulf of the American Civil Liberties Union, attorney for the two authors, Victor L. Marchetti and John Marks, and Floyd Abrams, lawyer for the publisher, Alfred A. Knopf, Inc., said Friday that they expect to file written answers to the court, opposing the government's motion, early next week.

The book in question is titled "The CIA and the Cult of Intelligence," and was completed last summer by Marchetti, a former employee of the CIA and Marks, a former worker at the State Department. But because of earlier court rulings stemming from litigation started by the government, Marchetti was forced to submit the manuscript to the CIA for approval before he could send it to his publisher.

SECRETARY OF STATE Henry Kissinger, right, and Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan talk to reporters shortly before their meeting in Washington.

Kissinger, Dayan meet on Mideast

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan met for two and one-half hours Thursday and described it as a "very useful and positive" discussion of ways to disengage Egyptian and Israeli forces on the Suez front.

Dayan, who will meet again with Kissinger today, reportedly proposed a limited, unilateral withdrawal of Israeli troops from the cease-fire line in exchange for a reduction of Egyptian forces on the eastern side of the Suez canal.

"We discussed the principles of disengagement of forces which Mr. Dayan brought," Kissinger said when the two men met with newsmen after their discussion.

"We expressed some of our own ideas. I am sure that Mr. Dayan would agree that it was a very useful and positive meeting. We have made some progress."

DAYAN who arrived in Washington only a short time before the meeting began, said he came with instructions from the Israeli cabinet to present Kissinger with "some of our talks about the principles of disengagement with Egypt."

Asked what Israel would demand in exchange for withdrawing from Egyptian territory, Dayan said it would depend on the general nature of the agreement, the kinds of weapons to be left in place and the distances involved.

Dayan said his country was asking for "understanding" from the United States, not for "guarantees."

FOLLOWING his meeting with Kissinger, Dayan went to a meeting with Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger, where he was expected to outline Israel's desire for more U.S. warplanes, tanks and other equipment.

The Tel Aviv newspaper, Ma'Ariv, had said that Dayan might present Kissinger with a troop withdrawal plan that would speed up progress in the Middle East peace talks in Geneva and enlist support from other nations by allowing the Suez Canal to be reopened.

There was speculation that Dayan would propose a withdrawal of Israeli troops to the Mitla and Giddi passes in the Sinai, 30 miles east of the Suez Canal. This apparently would be coupled with a demand that Egypt replace its two armies on the Eastern bank with police or constabulary forces.

American officials said this plan would allow the Egyptians to reopen the canal after about six months of clean-up work — removal of vessels sunk during the 1967 war and dredging of silt.

THE SOVIET UNION was known to want a opening of the canal, and U.S. officials speculated that it would help in maintaining peace in the Middle East. Israel also was expected to insist on using the canal, a right that has been denied the nation since it was created 25 years ago.

Kissinger, who earlier conferred with President Nixon in San Clemente, predicted Thursday that "good progress can be made in the separation of forces talks along the Suez Canal."

Israelis lift food blockade

By RAYMOND H. ANDERSON
New York Times Service

CAIRO — An Israeli blockade of food and other nonmilitary supplies for Egypt's Third Army and the City of Suez was reported Friday to have been lifted after United Nations intercession with the Israeli army and government.

The deputy spokesman of the U.N. emergency force, Birger Halden, disclosed Friday that Israeli troops refused Thursday to permit U.N. drivers to proceed with truckloads of supplies to unloading areas.

THE ISRAELIS cited shooting in the area as the reason, the spokesman said.

The day before, Israelis blocked the unloading of trucks at the Suez Canal for transfer of supplies to Egypt's Third Army, east of the Canal. But on that day they allowed trucks to the city of Suez to go through. Thursday they halted trucks for the City of Suez as well.

The ability of the Israelis to block the trucks underlined their de facto control of the highway to Suez, which they ostensibly relinquished in November under the American-sponsored cease-fire agreement.

Under the accord, the U.N. has the authority to deliver supplies to the City of Suez free of Israeli restraint. The Israelis have the right to check supplies to insure that they are nonmilitary.

The increasing outbreaks of shooting incidents along the frontlines, many of them initiated by the Egyptians, have begun to disturb the Israelis. Pressure on the supply lines to the third army and the City of Suez offers a form of retaliation.

The first restraints on the supplies were reported Dec. 26, when Israeli officers beside the Suez Canal transfer point obstructed the unloading of some trucks because of gunfire in the area.

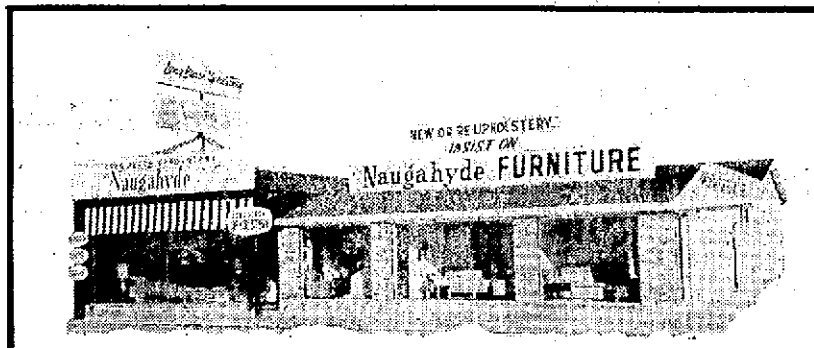

Pilotless spy planes unveiled in San Diego

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Two YQM-98A Air Force spy planes which will be remotely controlled rather than piloted were unveiled by Teledyne-Ryan Aeronautical Co. Friday.

Air Force Col. Ward H. Hemenway, program manager of the Air Force's Drone Piloted Vehicles System program office, called the planes an "aerospace first."

Specifically, they are to gather intelligence information for national leaders to make decisions.

"We can't allow ourselves to get in a situation where the pilot might be confined and held as a hostage," Hemenway said. "This allows us to obtain information decision makers need without that problem."

Pessimists say fight in Mideast still on

By United Press International

Egyptian and Israeli generals met for the fourth time in Geneva Friday on separating their armies along the tense Suez Canal front, where cease-fire violations are so rampant one Israeli official said the war is still going on.

Despite pessimistic reports from both Geneva and Tel Aviv, however, U.N. circles in Cairo said they expect an agreement within a week to 10 days on troop disengagements in the Suez area.

Firefights have been steadily escalating along the cease-fire lines and Israel reported two of its soldiers wounded in more fighting Friday. The military command in Tel Aviv said the Egyptians opened up with tank, artillery, mortar and antitank rockets north of Suez City and at the southern end of the canal.

In cease-fire violations Wednesday, Israel reported three of its soldiers killed and 10 wounded — the most casualties since the truce took effect.

"The war in fact is still going on," an Israeli official said in Geneva as Gens. Tahar el Magdoub of Egypt and Mordecai Gur of Israel began their fourth round of talks.

No trucks were permitted to be unloaded on Wednesday in retaliation for what the Israelis charged was Egyptian gunfire against an Israeli bulldozer.

AFTER supplies to both the third army and Suez were blocked Thursday, the U.N. emergency force raised the issue with Israel "at all levels," the spokesman here said.

SNOW HITS SOUTHLAND

Los Angeles and Northern California, was closed for several hours between the Kern County line and the San Fernando Valley.

Highway patrol officers said more than 200 cars had to be pulled out of the snow on the Antelope Valley Freeway between Lancaster and San Fernando. The freeway remained closed to traffic late Friday night.

Interstate 15, the main route to Las Vegas, was closed when snows blocked Cajon Pass. Also closed by snow was Interstate 10 over Banning Pass, the main route to Palm Springs.

Highway closures canceled today's basketball game between Long Beach State University and Fresno State University.

More than 40 cars were stranded in Topanga Canyon when mud and rocks slid onto the road from slopes denuded by fall brush fires.

No motorists were injured, but Los Angeles City firemen walked them out.

Meanwhile, the American Red Cross set up an emergency shelter at Malibu Civic Center for Topanga residents stranded by the mudslides.

Another Red Cross shelter was set in a high school in the Antelope Valley, where a foot of snow lay on the ground.

A third Red Cross shelter was set up near the Golden State Freeway in the northern San Fernando Valley, for motorists stranded by the closing of Interstate 5 over the Ridge Route.

In Northern California, snow ringed the San Francisco Bay area, and downed power lines were expected to leave as many as 6,000 persons without electricity until Monday.

"The situation is far more critical than we thought," a spokesman for the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. said. "Hundreds of lines are down."

"It's miserable," a power company lineman said. "We just don't build lines in temperate areas to withstand this much snow."

At least one death was directly attributed to the storm. A snow-laden tree in the Santa Cruz mountains collapsed, crushing Mrs. Barbara Knipe, 25, of Redwood Estates.

The Northern California storm was "the worst in 30 years," Sgt. Michael Aluffi of the Santa Cruz County Sheriff's Department said.

Snow ranged from a light coating in areas near sea level to 20 inches on Highway 17 between Santa Cruz and Los Gatos.

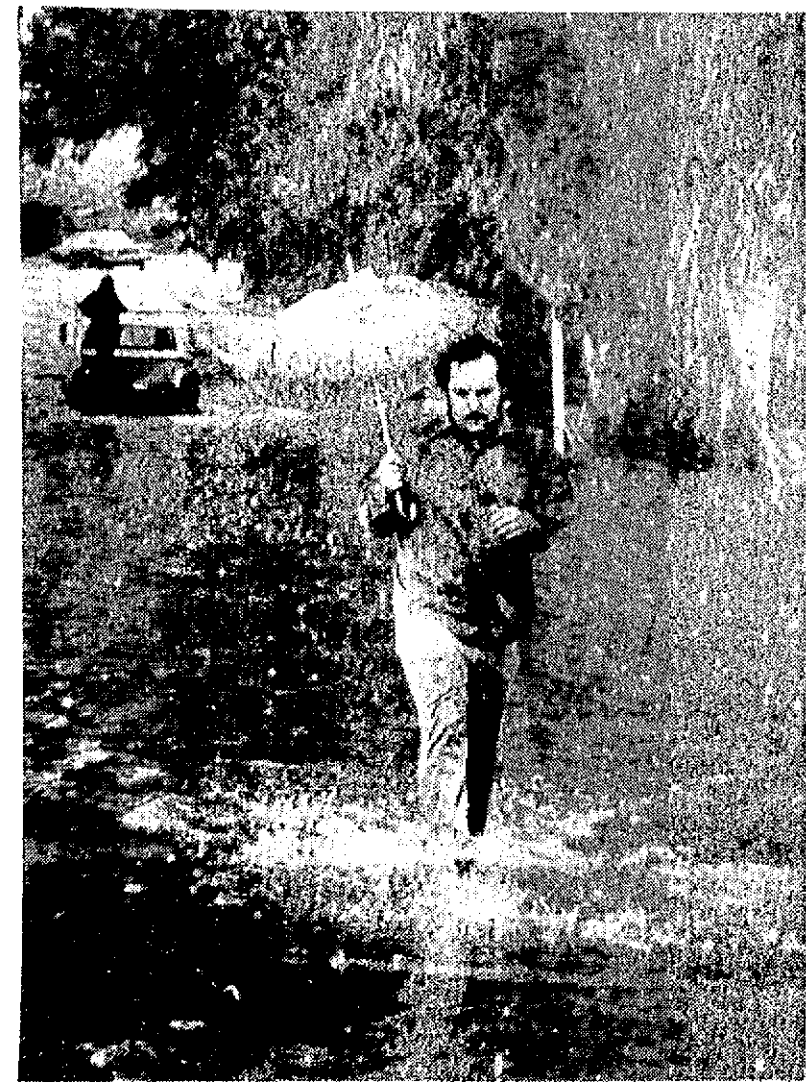

The freak storm closed several schools Thursday and Friday, and left children stranded awaiting rescue.

Rainwater from the storm was blamed for the closure of half a mile of the Garden Grove Boulevard, between Beach Boulevard and Hoover Street.

Police said the thoroughfare's asphalt collapsed when it was undermined by water which collected in a trench alongside the boulevard Friday night.

Long range forecasts from the National Weather Service gave little cheer to Northern Californians stranded by snow.

Some clearing was expected Monday, but rain and snow are predicted again for Tuesday and Wednesday.

Avalon milk run wasn't

The Coast Guard was involved Friday in what may be its most unusual rescue mission of 1974.

The 82-foot cutter Point Camden delivered 50 cases of milk to Catalina.

Winds gusting to 50 knots sending breakers crashing over the federal breakwater higher than the lighthouse at the entrance to Los Angeles Harbor prevented the normal shipment of the barge load of milk and other supplies to Avalon, the island's only city.

A spokesman for Catalina Freight Lines said Friday the normal Thursday shipment to the island was delayed by the high winds and high swells.

"We've got two refrigerated truckloads ready to go as soon as the seas calm down," he said.

The winds of early Friday also caused the delay in docking of the 1,014-passenger cruise ship, Fairsea. The ship inbound to Los Angeles Harbor anchored inside the federal breakwater shortly after its arrival at 6:40 a.m. and remained there until approximately 11 a.m. when the winds subsided. The ship docked at Berth 195 shortly before noon.

Car dealer must pay fraud fine

An Anaheim auto dealer will pay a $20,000 penalty and cease misrepresentations in his advertising, as result of a stipulated judgment announced Friday.

Rex Ellsworth, a Pontiac dealer, came under scrutiny of the Orange County district attorney's fraud unit after several persons complained that late-model cars advertised for lease were not available, and not at the price quoted.

Deputy District Attorney Robert Herron said that, in some instances, specific models of Pontiacs advertised for lease were not available as advertised "at any price," and he said Ellsworth agreed to cease such advertising.

In addition, he must make full restitution to any lessee who was "misled" into lease agreement as a result of the alleged fraudulent advertising, Herron said.

The stipulated judgment settles a civil action against Ellsworth's company, and includes a permanent injunction against misrepresentation.

President shakes up staff for Watergate defense

SAN CLEMENTE (UPI) — In a major shakeup of his White House legal staff, President Nixon Friday appointed James D. St. Clair, a Boston attorney to take charge of his Watergate defense.

In his new, full-time post, St. Clair, 53, will be paid $42,500 a year and clearly will be given responsibility for handling any defense Nixon mounts in the face of threatened impeachment proceedings by Congress.

Nixon chose St. Clair to succeed J. Fred Buzhardt as special counsel to the President, ending weeks of speculation that Buzhardt would be taken off the job. He has served since May as the chief White House lawyer on Watergate affairs.

Buzhardt was named counsel to the President and Leonard Garment, who has been the acting counsel since shortly after John W. Dean III was fired from the post in April, was appointed assistant to the President.

A White House spokesman insisted Nixon did not make the changes because he was "dissatisfied" with the work done by Buzhardt and Garment.

"Mr. Buzhardt has conducted himself ably and has done a fine job," said Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren. He added that "it was mutually agreed" by all involved that "this was the proper way to proceed" in view of "so many demands" on the White House legal staff and the need to increase it.

St. Clair once defended Vietnam war protester William Sloane Coffin, and also was an aide to Joseph Welch, counsel during the Army-McCarthy hearings in the early 1950s.

Nixon made the decisions after consulting here for about one hour with St. Clair on Monday, Warren said. That meeting was not disclosed previously. Warren said the shifts "have been under discussion for some time."

Warren said the White House now has fewer than 12 lawyers working on the Watergate scandal, but that the staff would be expanded in coming days. "He will be charged with the overall supervision of legal affairs associated with Watergate and related matters," the White House said in announcing the appointment of St. Clair, a lecturer at Harvard Law School since 1955 and a senior partner in the Boston firm of Hale and Door.

A presidential spokesman said Buzhardt and Garment, both 49, gradually would end their involvement in the Watergate case to assume the "broader responsibilities" of their new jobs.

three separate but equal branches.

HOWEVER, he said that he recognized that in "the current environment there may be some attempt to distort my position as only an effort to withhold information, but I take this position to protect the officer of the President against incursions by another branch which I believe, as had my predecessor in office, as the utmost constitutional importance."

Nixon said the subpoenas order him to produce all of the materials in his "custody or possession" while only six months ago the committee had concluded that recordings of only five conversations were necessary for the committee to reach a legislative determination.

"Now, in one subpoena alone, you list, with widely varying precision, some 492 personal and telephone conversations of the President ranging in time from mid 1971 to late 1973 for which recordings and related documents are sought," Nixon said.

IN ADDITION he noted that the subpoenas also called for recordings and related documents of presidential conversations identified only by participants and time spans measured in months and years. Another subpoena, he said, seeks the production of 37 categories of documents, one of which is "President Nixon's daily diary" from Jan. 1, 1970, to Dec. 19, 1973, a period of about four years.

The President recalled that he had stated in his letter to Ervin dated July 6, 1973, that "formulation of sound public policy requires that the President and his personal staff be able to communicate among themselves in complete candor, and that their tentative judgments, their exploration of alternatives and their frank comments on issues and personalities at home and abroad remain confidential."

"I anticipated that even quite limited, selected disclosures of presidential recordings and documents would inevitably result in the attrition, and the eventual destruction of the indispensable principle of confidentiality of presidential papers," he said.

NIXON ALSO reminded the committee that substantial White House materials have been provided to the office of special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski for possible use by grand juries.

Carson wins tax battle over revenue funding

BY BOB ANDREW
Staff Writer

Carson won a legal struggle with Los Angeles County officials Friday that will assure the city of more than a half-million dollars in additional federal revenue sharing funds this year.

Los Angeles Superior Court Judge David K. Eagleson granted the city a writ of mandamus against County Auditor Mark H. Bloodgood, Treasurer-Tax Collector Harold J. Ostley and Assessor Philip E. Watson ordering them to recognize Carson's decision to assess its own tax levy to pay the exact county charges for fire protection and library services.

The Carson City Council had enacted resolutions last Sept. 13 setting a city tax levy to pay those charges under provisions of a new state law (AB 2008) allowing cities to take over the tax rates of certain special districts in order to get greater credit with the federal government for local "tax effort" in computation of revenue sharing funds.

By designating the tax rates for the Los Angeles

County Free Library District, Los Angeles County Consolidated Fire Protection District and the Los Angeles County Dominguez Fire Protection District as city taxes, Carson will receive an extra $560,000 per year as long as the revenue sharing program continues.

However, county officials contended that the city acted too late since one section of the enabling legislation set a Sept. 1 deadline for "election" to use the new law while another section set a Sept. 14 date for enactment of the actual tax levy.

The county also contended that Carson was not eligible to use the fire protection districts since the city is covered by two districts not "a" district as specified in the state law.

Judge Eagleson first ruled that the time limit was "directory" not mandatory, therefore the city's failure to meet it could not invalidate its later action levying the tax. However, most of the 45 minutes of oral argument dealt with the "two district" issue.

Deputy County Counsel Dixon Holston argued that the Legislature had intended to limit the law to cities entirely within a single district so that citizens in one portion of the city would not carry an unequal proportion of the tax effort burden.

City Attorney Glenn Watson countered that for more than 100 years it has been a rule of law that the singular includes the plural unless there is a compelling reason to read otherwise. To the contrary, he added, the language of AB2008 so "jumbled" singulars and plurals it would be impossible to read them any way except interchangeably.

Watson also argued that "the greatest inequity" would be for the citizens of Carson to pay the entire tax effort for their portion of the two fire protection districts, and for the county to receive the federal funds to be expended in an area which may have no fire district.

Judge Eagleson, who before the hearing began had carefully placed in the record the fact that Holston had at one time worked for a law firm of which Eagleson was then a partner, totally accepted Watson's case. After the ruling, Watson quipped that he was entirely satisfied with the judge's impartiality.

Holston said he doubted if the case would be appealed, but that he would have to check with the appropriate county officials before making a positive statement.

Mansell aide new L.B. ecology chief

By DON BRACKENBURY
Staff Writer

James C. Hankla, administrative assistant to the city manager of Long Beach, has been named executive vice president of the new Long Beach Economic Development Corp., it was announced Friday by President Daniel H. Ridder.

The purpose of the Economic Development Corp. is to retain and attract job-producing business and industry to the city. One of its principal objectives is improvement of the 350-acre Westside Industrial Area.

Hankla's appointment was confirmed Friday by the corporation's board of directors on recommendation of its executive committee, Ridder said.

City Manager John R. Mansell said he is "sorry to lose such an able and intelligent assistant," but said he felt Hankla, as the administrative officer of the development corporation, would do an "outstanding job" in carrying out its programs.

Hankla has been Mansell's administrative assistant since July 1, 1967. He had previously been an administrative analyst and for three years was manager of the business services division of the Long Beach Recreation Department. He has been a Long Beach city employee since 1961.

A native of Louisville, Ky., Hankla moved to Wilmington in 1945 was graduated from Banning High School. He received his degree in political science, with emphasis on public administration, from Long Beach State University in 1961, and a master's degree from Los Angeles State College in 1967.

He was graduated with honors from the National Revenue Sources Management School in Wheeling, W. Va., and has taken additional courses in real estate and finance at Long Beach City College.

In 1968, Hankla was named by the Long Beach Junior Chamber of Commerce as the "outstanding young man" in the city, and he also won the Long Beach Century Club's William F. Prisk Award as the public official who most aided sports.

He was director and coordinator for the 1968 U. S. Olympic Trials, held in Long Beach and sponsored by the city.

Hankla serves on the Mayor's Advisory Committee for the Los Angeles Mall Project, has been a member of the football and basketball advisory committee for Long Beach State University, was advisor for the Special Interest Explorer Post—Local Government for the Boy Scouts, and was a guest lecturer in 1972, at the Recreation Administrators' Institute, sponsored by the University of California at Davis.

He is married to the former Jorene E. Drummond, and they have two sons, Kirk, 12, and Steven, 9. The family lives at 3570 Val Verde Ave.

Sister city tie with Zagreb weighed by L.B. Council

Whether Long Beach will establish a sister-city relationship with Zagreb, Yugoslavia, apparently will be determined by the City Council at its meeting next Tuesday.

A few weeks ago, councilmen discussed the possibility of such a relationship with Zagreb, and also with a Russian city, to be designated later. They instructed Mayor Edwin W. Wade to continue negotiations "in an exploratory way."

Mayor Wade said Friday he has received a letter from Dr. Milan Knezevic, vice president of the City of Zagreb, speaking for President Ivo Vrhovic, inviting the Long Beach mayor to visit Zagreb as their guest.

Purpose of the visit, the invitation said, would be "to create a sister-city relationship between the great cities of Long Beach and Zagreb which would fulfill the dreams of their forefathers, and would be for them a lasting monument to freedom and brotherhood between the old world and the new."

The letter from Dr. Knezevic, and a crystal ashtray with the coat of arms of Zagreb, were delivered to Mayor Wade by Andrew Mardesich of San Pedro, who has been advocating a sister-city affiliation between the two communities.

Mayor Wade asked the City Council on Tuesday to "take appropriate action to accept or reject the proposal," as submitted by Dr. Knezevic, with the understanding that, if accepted, he would consummate the affiliation on his visit to Zagreb.

Sulfur monitoring sought in County

By NOEL SWANN
Our L.A. Bureau

Supervisors Friday were urged to set up a county-wide sulfur-dioxide monitoring system to test the effects of allowing various utilities to burn high-sulfur fuel oil during the energy crisis.

The recommendation came from the county's Energy Commission after several members expressed concern that the increased amount of sulfur emitted into the atmosphere might have an adverse effect on human health.

The Air Pollution Hearing Board already has granted a 60-day variance to the City of Glendale, which was expected to run out of low-sulfur fuel supplies Friday. The variance will permit that city to burn fuel oil with a sulfur content above .5 percent.

Meanwhile, two other cities, whose low-sulfur fuel oil stocks are nearing depletion—Pasadena and Burbank—and the county's mechanical department and the County-USC Medical Center have made similar requests for variances. Their requests are expected to be heard Tuesday.

The mechanical department and Medical Center were requested Thursday morning to switch off the natural gas supply normally used for fueling heating plants. The mechanical department has only enough low-sulfur fuel to last six days, while the Medical Center's low-sulfur supply will last only four, officials said.

In other action, the commission created four task forces charged with developing short-term answers to the energy crisis.

The first is to be called the Emergency Plans and Action Sub-Committee, which will be headed by Commissioner Dixon Harwin, a business management consultant. This task force was charged with determining whether there are adequate emergency procedures in force in situations where utilities are faced with an imminent shutdown.

Part of the task force's job will also be to insure that adequate warning is given to utilities facing a cut-off of natural gas supplies.

Lester Lees, director of the CalTech Environmental Quality Laboratory will head up the second task force known as the County Energy Conservation Sub-Committee. This group will develop conservation measures, enforcement policies and programs to monitor how much energy is being saved by various measures.

The third group, known as the Resource Supply and Allocation Sub-Committee, will be headed by Edward Myers, Southern California Edison Company vice-president. This group has been asked to come up with information on the "whole spectrum" of availability of all forms of energy from gasoline to hydropower.

Finally, the Environmental Sub-Committee, headed by Dr. Richard Perrine, professor of engineering at UCLA, will be charged with developing appropriate monitoring programs.

Earlier, the commission was asked by Supervisor James Hayes to "refine" its recommendations after saying some of its (the commission's) resolutions passed last week were "painted with too broad a brush."

Cab driver arraigned in death of mariner

A 23-year-old Long Beach cab driver was arraigned Friday on a charge of misdemeanor manslaughter in connection with the New Year's Day death of a man who was ejected from his taxi when it collided with a train on Terminal Island.

Donald Lee Davis, of 3101 E. Fifth St., appeared before Los Angeles Municipal Court Judge Walter Binns, who set trial for 9 a.m. Jan. 21 in Division 80, San Pedro.

Davis was arrested earlier this week after 50-year-old Noel Foster, purser aboard the British motor-vessel Manchester Concept, was killed instantly when Davis' taxi collided with a Harbor Belline locomotive at a blind crossing on Mormon Street near Seaside Avenue.

Police said Foster was the first 1974 traffic fatality in Los Angeles. The accident occurred at 12:55 a.m.

Witnesses told police Davis, who is free on $1,000 bail, allegedly was driving at "excessive speeds" when the crash occurred. Investigators said it was raining and Davis had obscured visibility.

Davis and two of Foster's shipmates, John

Green, 22, and Anthony Moxham, 39, were treated for injuries but not admitted to Harbor General Hospital.

Hatchet-slaying suspect 'fit for trial'

By JOHN SHEEHAN
Staff Writer

A 26-year-old former Long Beach State University student Friday was declared mentally fit to stand trial in Long Beach Superior Court for the 1972 hatchet slayings of a 20-year-old San Pedro woman and her infant son.

John Michael Finley

was declared insane and unable to stand trial last January in connection with the slayings of Judith Terry and her 16-month-old son on Jan. 24, 1972. The woman's 21-year-old husband was critically injured in the attack but later recovered.

Judge Ellsworth Beam Friday vacated the previously set trial date of Jan. 17 and ordered the defendant returned to court on that date for trial date setting. Finley's trial could begin in late February, Deputy Dist. Atty. Robert Berger said.

Finley will continue to be represented by the public defender's office.

Beam said he made the decision on the basis of psychiatric examinations ordered in December by Judge D. Slerry Fagan who felt further testing was necessary after officials at Atascadero State Hospital said the defendant would be unable to understand trial proceedings against him.

Fagan also ordered the examinations to determine if Finley understood the charges against him.

The San Pedro family was attacked by a hatchet-wielding assailant who hacked repeatedly at the woman and infant during the afternoon, then attacked the husband when he returned home from work. The husband required 40 sutures to close wounds on his face.

Finley was arrested by Harbor Division police a short time later several blocks from the scene of the attack. He was ordered sent to Atascadero in January 1973 by Judge John Arguelles who said the defendant would remain committed until deemed fit to stand trial.

Finley has undergone repeated psychiatric examinations because doctors have disputed his mental state.

Lakewood's prize-winning parade float ruined by mud

Lakewood's prize-winning Tournament of Roses float "Happiness is an Enchanted Garden" has been claimed by the mud of Pasadena's Victory Park.

The exotic birds drinking from five fountains, all done up in vanda orchids, gladioli and white chrysanthemums, got stuck in the mud and broke apart when efforts were made to pull them out, city officials said Friday.

As a result the float will not be brought back to its sponsoring city for viewing as had been planned.

The float was designed so that tops of two of its tropical trees could be removed, making transport to Lakewood easier.

A city spokesman said the damage occurred when representatives of the firm that built the float were attempting to move it. "Efforts were made to repair damages, but workers were unable to make it mobile for the 30-mile trip," the spokesman said.

The float won first place in the New Year's Day parade for entries from cities with 75,000 to 85,000 population.

Coast chiefs assure public of time to communicate

By KRIS SHERMAN
Staff Writer

Coastal commissioners are scheduled to face a 120-item agenda when they begin their second year of watchdogging the Los Angeles - Orange County coastline at 9 a.m. Monday in the Long Beach Harbor Department's board room, 925 Harbor Plaza Drive.

Included on the agenda, which promises to occupy commissioners until 11 p.m., is something new this year—a "time certain" space allocated to members of the public who wish to speak to the group.

Though communication from public to commission sessions have been routinely set aside during commission meetings, they have usually been scheduled at the end of lengthy agendas.

Since most commission meetings run until 11 p.m., sometimes later, communication with the public often has been left out. Some meetings have been adjourned with items unclear from the agenda, while others have lasted so long there were few persons left in the audience at the time of adjournment.

The "time certain" item on Monday's agenda, scheduled for 3 p.m., insures that persons returning to the meeting after the lunch break will be allowed to converse with commissioners.

Amid permit and claim-of-exemption items scheduled for consideration Monday is the reconsideration of Edward Tizzard's claim of exemption to construct a four-unit apartment building at 1803 E. Ocean Blvd., Long Beach. Tizzard is seeking an exemption from the Coastal Conservation Act of 1972 on the basis that he had incurred substantial liabilities on his project prior to Feb. 1, 1973, the date the act became effective.

Other area projects scheduled for hearing and voting include five Huntington Beach developments and one Palos Verdes Estates permit application—construction of a 20-unit apartment building at 2543 Via Campesina, by Robert C. Dean.

The Huntington Beach projects are:

— Construction of a sanitary sewer system, water supply system, streets, curbs, gutters, sidewalks, underground storm drains and street lighting at the Sunset Heights Assessment District 7201, by the City of Huntington Beach.

— Construction of a storm drain pipe on Atlanta Avenue across Beach Boulevard by the Huntington Beach Department of Public Works.

— Construction of a two-story, four-unit apartment building at 405 18th St., by Joseph Shaffer.

— Construction of a four-unit apartment structure at 401 18th St., by Joseph Shaffer.

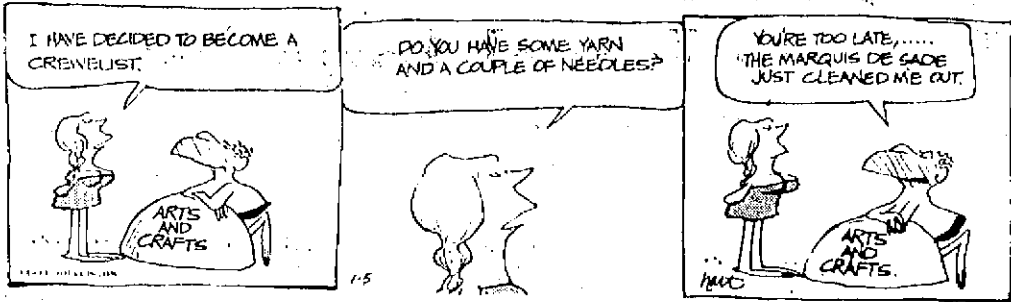

— And, construction of seven, four-unit apartment buildings at 406, 410, 414, 418, 422 and 426 22nd St., by Charles Hermansen.

area projects are listed on the agenda, all are on the consent calendar, which means they will not receive public hearings unless three commissioners request such an action.

Items placed on the consent calendar by the commission staff are generally considered to be of minor nature and are enacted by one vote of the commission. Monday's agenda contains 72 such permit applications.

"It's the only way we can see OUR shows!"

YOUR HOROSCOPE by JEANE DIXON

Forecast for Sunday

Your birthday today: Brings on a long upbeat campaign to make a completely different way of life, in which practically everything has an experimental or speculative quality. Pragmatism is now the only efficient approach: what produces continues in use; what fails, fails and should be discarded when it does. Today's natives escape major public attention, at either extreme of idealization or the contrary.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Once you've roused yourself and attended to your normal Sunday responsibilities, you have a good opportunity for testing personal theories.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): It's worth your while to look and act your best this Sunday. Make the rounds of good friends and neighbors, compare notes on your well-being.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Tracking down interesting information is apt to fill your day. Just take care that you neither skip nor skimp some essential errand long promised.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Every minute you can manage to apply to planning is that much time well used now and (enfold) as much saved later. New beginnings are at hand.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Your friends may not know any more than you do, but it's much more fun gathering a sizable group and sharing the discovery and choices.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Pay no attention to the mystified air of those who know you, nor need you explain the "why" of what you do. Much of the day is in unfamiliar subject matter.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Favorable progress follows steady commentary in which you pursue your point thru several formulations, directed to fill or fit the needs of all concerned.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Keep notes, see which diverse ventures may be serviced simultaneously as you rush around tomorrow catching up for weekend time.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Any pursuit of gain this Sunday is likely to come off awkwardly. Just as well you take this as the winding down of a streak of inconvenient coincidence.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Give more than usual consideration to formalities. Enjoy the good rhythm of conservative living. There is time for all manner of achievements today.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): When you have the attention of those who count in your schemes of reality, get to the point, and then let others carry the endless rounds of conversation.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): A relationship which lapses now is never resumed. Offer at least some amenities among those with whom you share opinions and news.

Gonorrhea drops; reversal due to energy crisis feared

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Gonorrhea cases reported in California continued their downward trend last year, but some doctors feel the energy crisis may stifle the battle against venereal disease, a health official said Friday.

"With the pending energy crisis people out of work will have more time for sexual activities," said Tom Ault, public health adviser for the California Venereal Disease program.

AULT said the incomplete figures for 1973 show 73,650 cases were reported between Jan. 1 and Sept. 30. This compared with 76,500 reported during the same period in 1972, for a reduction of 2,750 cases or about 4 per cent.

California's decrease in gonorrhea cases compared to an eight per cent increase nationwide.

But, Ault said, during the same nine-month period the number of early syphilis cases increased by 500. The total for the period ending Sept. 30 was 5,500 cases.

Ault said the impact of the energy crisis on the battle against VD has been discussed by health officials and some doctors. He said there is a possibility that the number of cases could increase if unemployment goes up and people have more time for sex.

The emphasis now being put on VD programs by lawmakers and other government officials could shift to energy problems, Ault said. He said this could mean reduced funding for the VD battle.

On the other hand, he said because of the fuel shortage there would be less travel between metropolitan areas and less chance of the contagious disease being transferred from one area to another.

He attributed the decrease in gonorrhea to hard work on the part of county clinics.

"They never give up their fight against venereal diseases," he said.

HE SAID a new state screening program for women has helped detect VD cases and eliminate its spread. Women going to county clinics for "checkups" are given tests to detect gonorrhea. The state foots the bill for the tests.

Some 430,000 women have been screened for the disease so far statewide.

Gonorrhea has showed a decrease in California for the last three years, health officials said.

Hong-Kong flu hits S.F. family

10% in state may get 'bug'

SACRAMENTO (AP)—A new form of influenza probably will infect five to 10 per cent of California's more than 20 million residents, a state disease expert said Friday.

The flu is a comparatively mild form called Type B, which was first discovered in Hong Kong in 1972, said Dr. James Chin. He said it has made its first California appearance by striking a South San Francisco family.

"THAT means there is most likely quite a lot of infection throughout California due to this virus," said Chin, chief of the Department of Health's infectious disease section.

He said there have been a few cases of the virus being discovered in travelers returning from Hong Kong, but that the South San Francisco cases are the first to his knowledge involving Americans who didn't travel to other countries.

California was struck in 1968 with a form of virus commonly called "Hong Kong flu" because it was first isolated in Hong Kong, Chin said. This new form of "Hong Kong flu" bears no relation to the earlier variety except that they were both first isolated in the same place, he said.

Chin said the 1968-69 flu season was the worst in recent California history in terms of absenteeism and deaths resulting from influenza and pneumonia. Last year was a similar epidemic season but "we don't expect anything of that magnitude this season," he said in an interview.

The flu season typically runs from December to March.

He said Type B viruses, the kind now believed to be in California, generally cause a milder illness with fewer complications and they spread more slowly than a stronger form of flu virus known as Type A. The 1968 form of Hong Kong flu was Type A.

Initiative seeks ceiling on property taxes of elderly

SACRAMENTO (AP)—An initiative which would place a ceiling on property taxes for the retired and disabled was launched Friday by a black Republican businessman.

Vernon E. Brown of Los Angeles predicted he would collect a million voter signatures in two months, more than double the number needed to place the issue on the Nov. 5 general election ballot.

Brown's proposal consists of a 115-word amendment to the California Constitution which would provide that once a homeowner becomes disabled or is 55 or older and retired, his property tax bill may not be increased.

It would apply to homes with market values of $32,000 or less.

Brown said he paid the $200 filing fee for the initiative himself and filed it Friday morning with the attorney general.

"It would mean that 80 per cent of the people, when they retire, won't have any property tax increases. People who are retired or disabled have a fixed income. They are the people who can least afford property tax increases," Brown said.

He said he planned to circulate petitions through senior citizen organizations, veterans and church groups and other organizations.

"The worst thing I have to fight is the Republican Party. I'm a Republican, but I'm in the doghouse for being a dissident black Republican," Brown said.

Brown first tangled with Republican leaders after his unsuccessful campaign for Congress in 1970 against Democrat Glenn M. Anderson of Torrance. Brown complained that even though he was the GOP candidate, he got no help from the Republican party because of its lack of interest in black candidates.

In 1972 he attended the Republican National Convention as an alternate from California and clashed again with party leaders and accused them of putting "token blacks" in conspicuous spots but giving them no real authority.

Pesticide regulations draw fire

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Industry officials Friday attacked proposed new pesticide regulations for agriculture workers, declaring the rules "far exceed the realm of realism."

State health officials, however, said the regulations were needed to curb the rising number of pesticide related illnesses, which totaled 1,474 during 1973.

The figure was up from 1,300 in 1971.

Dr. Ephraim Kahn, head of the Department of Health's epidemiological laboratory, declared the proposed regulations were a "real step forward in overcoming a major occupational health problem in California."

KAHN spoke during a Department of Food and Agriculture hearing on the regulations, which must go into effect Monday by law. The timetable for some of the specific regulations, however, calls for them to be implemented over a period of months and, in some cases, years.

Golden Jubilee Service

Temple Israel founders to be honored on 50th

On Friday evening, at 8:30 p.m. the Temple Israel congregation and friends will celebrate a Jubilee Sabbath Service dedicated to the 50th Anniversary Year of Temple Israel's service to Long Beach.

The service will also pay tribute to those who founded and built the temple in 1924, and those whose generosity built the present sanctuary at Third and Loma Streets in 1941. The original sanctuary of the second oldest Reform Congregation in Southern California was on Anaheim Street.

Rabbi Joseph B. Glaser, executive vice president of the Central Conference of American Rabbis, will speak on "Founders and Builders." Rabbi Glaser directs the operation and activities of the Reform, Liberal and Progressive rabbis throughout the world, including Israel, though largely based in North America.

Arlene Solomon, chairman of the celebration, has created a service for worship and music will be provided by the Temple Quartet with Lloyd Holzgrafe at the organ. The Temple Sisterhood will host the Oneg Shabbat.

Spiritual leader of Temple Israel since the 1950s has been Rabbi Woll Kaelter.

AS PART OF the continuing celebration, there will be an Institute for the Clergy Thursday from 9:45 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the temple, led by Rabbi Lou H. Silberman who will speak on Leo Baeck.

Those interested may reserve for the day, including luncheon served by the Sisterhood, at $2, by calling the temple.

Rabbi Silberman is professor of Jewish Thought and Literature at Vanderbilt University and has lectured all over the world, including in the Vatican.

Bach marathon, Queen vespers, Fish symbol

By LES RODNEY

A "Bach Organ Marathon," no less, will begin today at 3 p.m. and continue at least eight hours in First Congregational Church, Third and Cedar. Some 20 Southland organists will donate their time and talents for the unique event, which is a benefit for the church's organ maintenance fund. A $2 donation is asked, —$1.50 for students.

In addition to the preludes and fugues, toccatas, sonatas, chorale preludes and variations, there will be tours of the church's imposing 72-rank Moeller organ, with 4,000 pipes in seven divisions, an organ which has been used by some of the great-

Morton, recovering from heart surgery, at Emmanuel Presbyterian, Sixth and Termino. The popular pastor will be back in the pulpit at 10:30 a.m.

Making it a double festival, the congregation will honor member John Cunningham following the service. He will celebrate birthday 100 on Tuesday. Born in Philadelphia, he was one of the founders of the Philadelphia Opera Company, and still retains a keen interest in opera.

He lives with his wife in Belmont Shores, and the couple may often be seen strolling.

IT MAY BE too late for you to be married in the Queen Mary Wedding Chapel, but you can catch Sunday vespers services there at 6 p.m. starting this Sunday, informs Rev. Robert Pomeroy. Ministers, choirs and organists from Long Beach churches will participate, starting Sunday with Chaplain John Piirto of the Naval Station, the man who offered the prayers for the Apollo 11 astronauts from the USS Hornet in 1969.

The wedding chapel is located on the promenade deck. The vespers services are seen as a convenience and attraction to tourists.

TO THOSE who asked the exact meaning of the Fish symbol they see on bumper stickers and elsewhere: The fish itself is an ancient symbol for the Savior. The Greek letters spell the word fish, pronounced Iktus. The letters also form a "rebus" with the words: Jesus-Christ-God's-Son-Saviour. Early Christians drew the symbol on the door-posts of their homes, on the walls of catacombs, and generally used it as a means of identifying themselves as believers.

Today the FISH organization does noble work as a daytime adjunct to the church in neighborhoods, doing little services which are often much needed.

Epiphany's ancient feast

Were the 'wise men' astrologers?

By LOUIS CASSELS
UPI Religion Writer

This weekend, Christians around the world are celebrating an ancient festival whose significance is obscure to most of them.

The Feast of the Epiphany is observed annually on Jan. 6. This is the final day of the 12-day "Christmastide" season which begins Dec. 25. Thus it is sometimes called (as in Shakespeare's play) "Twelfth Night."

The name "Epiphany" comes from a Greek word which can be translated literally as "manifestation." In practice, the Greeks reserved it for manifestations of divinity.

Christian tradition holds that the Feast of the Epiphany commemorates three occasions when the divinity of Christ was manifested.

The first was the arrival of the Magi — the "Wise Men" who were guided to Jesus' birthplace, the gospels say, by a star.

The second manifestation took place when Jesus, then a grown man, was baptized by the Prophet John in the Jordan River. The gospels record that a voice from heaven proclaimed, "This is my beloved son, in whom I am well pleased."

The third manifestation commemorated at Epiphany was the occasion when Jesus performed his first miracle, turning water into wine in order to spare a host embarrassment at a wedding party in the Galilean village of Cana.

Celebration of Epiphany is older than the observance of Christmas, which did not attain a fixed date on the Christian calendar until well into the Fourth Century A.D. in eastern Europe, Greece and the Middle East, where the Orthodox Church has been the dominant cultural influence for centuries. Epiphany continues today to be a more important festival than Christmas.

In western Christendom, Epiphany celebrations since the Middle Ages have concentrated on the first of the three manifestations — the visit of the Magi to the stable in Bethlehem.

The Bible does not say how many "Wise Men" there were. The traditional assumption there were three is derived from the fact that scripture does record they brought three different gifts: gold, frankincense and myrrh. These to people of that era, symbolized tribute, worship and death.

In all likelihood the "Wise Men" were Babylonian astrologers, and it is quite possible they were attracted to Judea by a rare conjunction of planets in the evening sky which, modern astronomers have calculated, took place in the year of Jesus' birth.

But pious legend has promoted the astrologers to Kings of Orient. It not only has arbitrarily fixed their number at three, but has even provided them with names: Casper, Melchior and Balthazar. This embroidering of the simple scriptural story reached a peak when the Roman empress Helena "discovered" some bones which a fourth century con man persuaded her were the remains of Caspar, Melchior and Balthazar. She transported them to Europe, and they now lie magnificently entombed in the Cathedral of Cologne, Germany.

In concert

Art Reynolds, of the Art Reynolds Singers and Capitol Recording fame, musician, songwriter and vocalist, will appear Sunday, 3 p.m., in a gospel concert sponsored by the Young Adult Choir of New Hope Baptist Church, New York and Alamitos. He wrote the recently recorded song "Jesus Is Just Alright." Other musicians and singers are on the program, for which there is no admission charge.

Epiphany rites in Long Beach

The Right Rev. Bishop Meletios, of San Francisco, western states spiritual leader of the Greek Orthodox Church, will officiate Sunday at Epiphany rites in the waters of Pacific Lagoon adjoining Long Beach Municipal Auditorium.

The centuries-old ceremony commemorating the baptism of Christ by John the Baptist includes a contest among a score of young divers to retrieve a small gilt cross that the prelate casts into the waters.

The evening before the rites, the Greek-American community of the Long Beach and San Pedro area will present its annual Hellenic Gold Plaque Awards at a banquet in the Grand Salon aboard the Queen Mary.

Receiving a plaque, along with Bishop Meletios, will be George Putnam, former television newscaster.

Says Christians must be moral

"Even in a time of decline in public morality," a Christian "must be a moral person," the president of the Lutheran Church in America said in a statement about "relating faith to life."

Rev. Dr. Robert J. Marshall stated: "A Christian is required not to accept the generalization that 'everybody's doing it.' He dare not become cynical and say, 'You can never expect anything good to come out of politics.' To be cynical is to reject the implication of Christian hope."

Jerry Baker, California Baptist missionary to the deaf, will lead a workshop on the topic Monday and Tuesday at 7 p.m. in FIRST BAPTIST OF WESTMINSTER, 14200 Goldenwest St.

"The Mystery and the Magic of the Eucharist" is the topic of Dr. Stephan Hoeller Sunday 3 p.m. at THEOSOPHICAL SOCIETY, in the Y building at Sixth and Pacific.

Betty Pershing, staff writer for Gospel Light Publications in Glendale, is now teaching a weekly Bible study for ladies in El Dorado Park Community Church, 3655 Norwalk Blvd., Long Beach. She is a former college teacher. Interested women are asked to call the church office.

Ask amnesty

The Mariloma Monthly Meeting of Friends, a local Quaker group, has urged Congress to "grant a general and unconditional amnesty for all those who, opposing war, have become enmeshed in the legal nets of the government, regardless of whether military, federal or state laws are involved."

'Lord's policies' says new Mormon head No change on blacks, women seen by leader

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — The traditional policies of the Mormon Church towards blacks and women won't change soon, says its new "prophet, seer and revelator," Spencer W. Kimball.

But Kimball, 78, told newsmen this week he had a special interest in improving the lot of the Indians — or Lamanites as they are called by Mormons.

"We feel they have the best blood in the world," said Kimball, leader of the church's Indian program for a quarter century and son of a 19th century Mormon missionary to the Oklahoma Indian territory.

Kimball was ordained as 12th president of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. He succeeded Harold B. Lee as leader of the world's 3.3 million Mormons. Lee died last week of heart and lung failures.

The new president said he did not think the Mormon position on blacks would change soon. The church denies blacks membership in its priesthood to which all Mormon men over the age of 12 belong.

"This is not my policy, or the church's policy," Kimball said. "It's the Lord's policy."

The Mormon Church has long taken the position that the question of black equality will be resolved only by a revelation by God to the Mormon prophet.

Kimball also told newsmen he recognized the role of women in society was changing.

"But I hope it will not change too abruptly," he said. "Generally speaking women should remain in the home. To bear children and raise a family — that is their most sacred calling. Any other course may be disastrous."

Kimball called on all Mormons to work to maintain and strengthen the family. The new prophet also said he hoped to strengthen the church's missionary work among Indians. Mormons believe the Indians of North and South America are descendants of a family of Israelites who migrated to the new world several hundred years before the birth of Christ. The story of that migration is the basis of the

KIMBALL Stresses family

Book of Mormon, which along with the Bible, is a fundamental LDS religious text. The ancestors of the Indians are called Lamanites in the Book of Mormon.

"We feel we have a special responsibility to these people," Kimball said.

Kimball's health has concerned many Mormons. He has survived typhoid fever, smallpox and throat cancer. Only 18 months ago he underwent open heart surgery.

But the new president says doctors tell him his health is fine.

"I'm in good health," he said. "But I am amazed at my recovery from the various afflictions I've had."

Says Christians must be moral

"Even in a time of decline in public morality," a Christian "must be a moral person," the president of the Lutheran Church in America said in a statement about "relating faith to life."

Rev. Dr. Robert J. Marshall stated: "A Christian is required not to accept the generalization that 'everybody's doing it.' He dare not become cynical and say, 'You can never expect anything good to come out of politics.' To be cynical is to reject the implication of Christian hope."

Says campus priest:

Do-it-yourself religions not Christianity

RIDDER NEWS SERVICE

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. — Rev. William J. Teska wears jeans, cowboy boots, has a pony tail and calls himself an "orthodox radical."

But for all practical purposes, Father Teska might be called a traditionalist in contemporary garb.

In a day when many young people are rejecting the traditional or organized church and reaching out to Jesus Movement-type groups or Eastern religions, Father Teska is trying to win college students back to the church.

Although Teska is an outspoken critic of some of the church's activities — "the church is the bride of Christ, not the whore of Caesar; but I'm afraid in this country the church has been the latter all too often" — he does not believe the current do it yourself religions are really Christianity.

FATHER TESKA, who became an Episcopalian in college and now at 30 is chaplain at the University of Minnesota Episcopal Center, said that while there is a revival of interest in religion among young people, "this is not an interest in traditional, established, main line religious institutions."

As young people started rejecting religious institutions, Teska continued, membership began to fall off at the campus religious centers. All traditional religious groups on campus except the Mormon Church have lost members, he said.

The Episcopal Center was among the casualties. The building has been leased to the university, and the center now is located in the basement of Newman Center, the Catholic center.

"The move was both financial and philosophical," Teska said. "In the 1950s it was important to have a church home away from home. This feeling diminished in the 1960s and the building became an albatross around our necks."

"By leasing the building we could pay the salary of a second chaplain. So, we decided to put our money into people and programs instead of in a building."

PART OF THE rejection of traditional religions, Teska believes, is that young people are looking for their own values and identification.

"Young people are testing the values of their parents," he said. "If they are Christians or become Christians, they often reject their parents' kind of church and become interested in a variety of new groups of Eastern religions."

Another reason for the rejection, he said, is that the church has become closely identified to the whole culture that is being rejected by young people.

"The church is part of the establishment, and young people are seriously questioning everything about society," he said. "The church was wrong to become a pillar of society. There is no such thing as a divine society, and a church that is really Christian isn't a servant of any culture."

Teska believes there is a "genuine concern" on the part of young people for social justice.

"They are interested in the community and in working in the community," he said. "But they are doing things in a more ad hoc way."

When they reject traditional churches, he said, they often turn to a "bewildering array of experiences that ranges from vulgar occultism to the deeply genuine and profound traditions of other cultures."

"Some of these religious experiences are more genuine than others, some more harmful than others," he said. "Some are downright sinister."

Apparently some young people are not rejecting ritual and authority, Teska continued, "because they are willing to sign their lives away to a guru and perform all sorts of rituals."

The Christian groups, such as the "Jesus People" and "Jesus Freaks," he said, are "all more or less on the fundamentalist side."

"They seem to be just one more example of Protestantism," he said.

"And they all have one thing in common — individualistic or personal conversion and salvation. As in Eastern religions, there is an emphasis on personal, spiritual growth."

The desire for esteem

I met an amazing man who runs a collection agency. He calls himself a "debt doctor." Such organizations take over uncollected debts from business firms and get as much money as possible out of the delinquents, usually on a commission basis.

Now I have always thought that men in this business must be the hard nosed type who get a kind of sadistic pleasure from badgering other people. But I was wrong about this man — and no doubt I've been wrong about most of the others too. For, surprisingly, this collection man is a rare character. He told me that he had dedicated this business to helping people get their affairs organized.

He went on to explain his way of doing business. He would call on a man whose account with a department store, let us say, was long overdue and have a talk with him. "This is what you owe," he would explain, "so let's together try to find a way to do something about it."

THEN the debt-ridden man would begin to explain, perhaps, that he had an extravagant wife, that there had been illness or business conditions were bad. "I'm absolutely swamped with bills," was a usual frustrated explanation. "I have no respect for myself any more, and I know that other people have no respect for me either. I'm sick and fed up with the whole futile business. There's just no way out of this mess."

After he had given the unhappy man opportunity to pour out his woes, the collection agent or debt doctor would suggest: "There is a way out and we will find it. And to start 'What do you say — let's put the whole matter on the table and pray about it. Let's ask the Lord what to do about these debts."

This would usually so startle the debtor that he would be willing to do anything, even pray. Then the agent would go on: "Let's see, now. What is your income? What are your assets, as small as they may be? Let's organize things so that by paying off a little each week you'll ultimately get out from under. I'll get in touch with your creditors and tell them the exact amount they can expect regularly from you, even if it's only a little. Using this systemized approach, we will get you out of financial trouble sooner than you think."

The agent grinned at me. "You ought to see the change in a guy the minute he gets organized and begins to pay up. Before long he gets a new self-respect. Seeing an out from his troubles, he keeps at it and soon his bills will have been cut by fifty percent, and he then becomes sure that he'll have them all cleaned up eventually. When there is, say, only twenty-five percent left, he'll start knowing then that people are beginning to have respect for him again. They always respect a sincere and systematic person who is trying to solve his problems." And better still he gets a new respect for himself.

This collection agent told me, "Every human being has the desire for self-respect and the esteem of others. I like to think I help restore self-respect to those who have lost it, and the regard of their fellow men as well."

IT IS INDEED true that one of the deepest desires of human nature is to be well thought of; to be liked. Whenever you hear someone say, "I don't care what other people think about me," you can put it down as a foolish and unrealistic statement. We do care profoundly what others think of us. Lincoln, in his first speech to the voters of Saganon County said, "I have no other ambition so great as that of being truly esteemed by my fellow men."

Nor is the method for gaining esteem a complicated one. An upstate New York farmer, an old friend of mine, had a homey and very sound philosophy of life, together with the gift of simple and potent expression. I was constantly surprised and enlightened by his insights. Once I heard him need time alone "in a closet or on the desert," Teska said, "this meditation must impel them back into the world of men so they can proclaim the Word of God to all men. As one clergyman said, the new Christian groups portray God as a salvage operation, swooping down and saving individuals."

Father Teska believes the task of churches is to be "Christian and win young people over to the viewpoint of the real church ordained by God." "We must get the message across to young people that the church isn't the servant of any government and that you can serve only one master, God," he said. "We can't say it's all right to believe anything. Easy tolerance isn't the answer. We're saying then there's no truth at all."

While Teska said he first thought it was healthy for young people to reject certain aspects of religion and society, he's now concerned about some of the religious replacements young people are seeking.

"Eventually, some of these young people may come back to the established church," he said. "But I'm afraid some may crash and burn and some will be so disillusioned with the replacements they've embraced that they'll reject all religion."

Teska would like to see the "raw energy" of the Jesus People brought into the established church.

"If we can bring the two together," he said, "there may be a new departure in religious life."

One who does not share many of Father Teska's concerns is Dr. Mabelle McCullough, assistant dean for student affairs at the university.

"Young people are asking for more sophisticated religion classes, so surely they are expressing interest in and knowledge about religion," Dr. McCullough said. "It's true many young people are rejecting old line religions, but I find this rather refreshing and a challenge to these churches to meet the needs of young people."

"I'm sure chaplains are suffering," she continued, "because they see membership at their centers dropping. If I had their job, I'd be concerned too."

"Young people are more interested in issues and concerns than structure," Dr. McCullough said, "and the new Christian religious groups are reaching youth in a way established churches haven't."

Membership in the campus YMCA and YWCA which have programs for the community are thriving, she said.

"It's very frustrating every day, and I see that you are very high on mutual funds. You like it when a person invests a certain amount of dollars every month and reinvests the dividends. I like this approach, too; but I have been buying AT&T in the same way you have suggested that people buy funds.

I am 47 years old, own 800 shares of AT&T, have my home paid for and am able to invest $300 a month, plus reinvest the dividends. What is your opinion on this type of investment?" Do you think AT&T is a "growth" stock? I also plan to buy 200 shares of Detroit Edison and spend $75 a month on additional shares — again reinvesting the dividends.

A: There's nothing a ily of having another $100 a month to invest. Being somewhat nervous about investing in stocks or mutual funds, I want to take about $20 of the $100 and start putting it into something that will be a sound investment.

My question is: what is there that I can invest such a small amount in, and what would be the best bet? I have never invested in anything before, but would like to start something small.

A: If you're all that nervous about the risk in stocks or mutual funds then I don't think there's very much helpful advice I can give you that you wouldn't reject. You're not really talking about "investing," at all — which implies a certain amount of risk — but "saving."

So I won't suggest that you start either a Monthly Investment Program through a broker-member of the New York Stock Exchange, or that you sign up for a mutual fund monthly contractual plan, because both have a certain amount of risk involved.

Why don't you just set that $20 a month aside in a separate savings account and, every time you get about $1,000 laid away, take it out and buy a corporate bond (rated "A" or better) that will yield about 7½ per cent.

Life is too short to be spent fretting over this sort of thing. If you can't feel comfortable being involved in risk situations then you should avoid them like the plague.

'Jackpot,' 'Marriage' to debut

By BOB MARTIN
TV-Radio Editor

NBC-TV will introduce two new daytime series Monday. They are "Jackpot," a question-and-answer game show with big prize money, and "How to Survive a Marriage," a contemporary serial-drama (soap opera?) focusing on the problems of separation and divorce.

Both will be half-hour, Monday-through-Friday programs, except that "How to Survive a Marriage" will start off with a special 30-minute episode.

The series' regular time period will be 2 to 2:30 p.m. on Channel 4, but Monday it will start at 1. It replaces the canceled "Return to Peyton Place" on the NBC daytime programming.

"How to Survive a Marriage" revolves around the problems of Chris and Larry Kirby, who separate after 12 years of marriage and one child. Both must adjust to their new lifestyles as they try to learn to live apart from each other.

Jennifer Harmon portrays 32-year-old Chris, and Michael Landrum plays Larry. Others in the cast are Rosemary Prinz, Lynn Lowry, Fran Brill, Allan Miller, Joan Copeland, Suzanne Davidson, Steve Elmore, Tricia O'Neil, Peter Brandon, Paul Vincent and George Shannon.

GEOFF EDWARDS will host "Jackpot," which will offer potential prize money of up to $50,000 for the big winner each week. The question-and-answer game is played by 16 contestants, who will remain on the program for an entire week competing for cash prizes.

In addition to emceeing "Jackpot," Edwards will continue to host TV's "The New Treasure Hunt," which is syndicated in 75 major cities, and his daily three-hour morning radio show on KMPC in Los Angeles.

"Jackpot" will air from 11 to 11:30 a.m.

Another NBC game show, "Jeopardy," moves to a new time period, 9:30 to 10 a.m., beginning Monday, and "All-Star Baffle" shifts to 11:30 a.m. "Jeopardy," hosted by Art

Fleming, will start off the new season with a $10,000 "Run-A-Category" bonus for four weeks.

CHILDREN WHO like to watch NBC's Saturday morning kiddie shows should be reminded that, beginning today, seven of the 10 half-hour programs will be telecast in new time periods. Four will be seen earlier and three later than they have been up until now, with three remaining in their original positions. So check the logs.

Why the changes? "We decided to make time period changes in situations where we feel we can become even more competitive," said Joseph M. Taritero, director, children's programs, NBC-TV. "Research information also indicates that our new lineup offers a better audience flow, program-to-program, across the entire five-hour span."

BUDDY EBSEN'S daughter Bonnie, 22, will make her television acting debut on her father's "Barnaby Jones" series Sunday night (9:30 to 10:30) on CBS. She plays the dedicated secretary of a Women's Lib leader who is having a love affair with a male chauvinist author.

The writer's crippled wife is murdered in the episode, titled "Venus as in Flytrap," and Barnaby (Ebsen) enters the case.

"INDICT AND CON-VICT," two-hour TV movie about the double murder of a deputy district attorney's wife and her lover, will air at 8:30 p.m. Sunday on ABC (Channel 7). Part of it was filmed in Long Beach, and the story grew out of the Jack Kirschke case.

DICK FRIEND, who used to work for the Independent Press-Telegram and is public relations chief for the Los Angeles County Fire Department, plays himself in tonight's episode of "Emergency!" on NBC (from 8 to 9). The episode is titled "Inferno," and in it paramedics Gage and DeSoto (Randolph Mantooth and Kevin Tighe) are trapped by a raging fire as they attempt to rescue a fireman caught beneath a tractor.

Much of the fire footage was filmed from a helicopter during last July's big brush blaze on the Palos Verdes Peninsula.

WANT TO STOP smoking? Then you may wish to tune in a "SleepLearning" experiment on radio station KEZM (107.5 FM). The experiment will be run from 1 a.m. to 5 a.m. every day starting Sunday night (Monday morning) through "Heart Sunday," Feb. 24.

The program has been put together in association with the California Heart Association and the Los Angeles County Medical Association.

Each night the program will present four hours of "soothing, beautiful music," interspersed every 15 minutes with carefully planned announcements designed to stimulate the listener to strengthen his or her resolve to stop smoking.

"SleepLearning" won't work, it is pointed out, unless the listener has made a positive personal commitment to stop smoking.

Foreign sales account for 50% of film net

For the first time in recent years, U.S. films will have obtained more than half their 1973 earnings in foreign countries, Jack Valenti, president of the Motion Picture Association of America, announced at the Eberan International Film Festival.

"The secret of American film dominance always has been and continues to be our organized global distribution," Valenti said.

"It is unique among all countries of the world. No other country could shoulder the expense of a distribution network or overcome the difficulties in sustaining it."

Foreign film rentals accounted for 48 per cent of U.S. film revenues in 1972.

Lakers find the Warriors defenseless

By DOUG IVES Staff Writer

If defense is the name of the game in pro basketball, it was easy to see Friday night why the Golden State Warriors have reached rock-bottom, losing 10 of their last 11 games.

The Lakers ran and passed with precision, but the Warriors made them look like world-beaters with a porous defense that led to innumerable lay-ins and an eventual 114-111 victory at the Forum.

The win was the first over Golden State this season and boosted the Lakers into a 3½-game lead over their intra-state rivals in the Pacific Division.

Golden State was so confused on defense that its only recourse was to foul instead of giving up cheap baskets. The Lakers enjoyed the charity, hitting 38 of 46 from the free throw stripe.

The Warriors scored seven more baskets, and usually when a team does this and loses, the coach screams that the officiating was less than brilliant. Golden State coach Al Attles was more honest. He put the blame where it belonged—on his defense.

"What can I say?" replied the beleaguered Attles, who once was a standout defensive guard in the NBA. "When you give up that many cheap baskets you deserve to lose."

BALANCE is something nice to have on any team, and the Lakers shared the scoring wealth. Gail Goodrich, as usual, was the pacesetter with 29 points, but six of his teammates also scored in double figures.

Rapidly improving Jim Price added 20 points, including four in the last minute when the Warriors made a brief challenge.

Rick Barry, the most productive Warrior in two previous wins over the Lakers, had a frustrating night and wound up with only 13 points in 29 minutes.

The hot-tempered veteran was scoreless in the first half, playing only five minutes because of four fouls, and he only looked like an All-Star in the third stanza, scoring 11 points.

Jeff Mullins netted a season high of 27, twice his average, and Nate Thurmond was effective with 22 rebounds and 21 points. The rest of the Warriors were mediocre to poor.

Cazzie Russell scored well, 21 points, but he had only 8 in the last three quarters and he is the most guilty of all the Warriors when it comes to playing aggressive defense.

THE FACT that Barry was chosen on the All-Star team, and Russell may be selected, led Laker assistant coach John Barnhill to put in a plug for the unheralded Hairston.

"Happy deserves to be an All-Star," said Barnhill, who replaced Bill Sharman for the seventh successive game. "He does everything well and there aren't many, if any, better rebounding forwards in the league."

Barnhill was pleased with all his players, and he also had extra praise for center Elmore Smith, who blocked 8 shots.

"He's been very active lately, and that's what this team needs," said Barnhill. "We rely heavily on Elmore."

The passing of Connie Hawkins thrilled the crowd of 14,379, but the most accurate and timely pass of the night was a 50-footer from Bridges to Goodrich for a lay-in with 2:27 remaining.

The basket gave the Lakers a 108-102 lead and stopped the momentum that the Warriors had built up. Two free throws by Hawkins at 1:48 put the game away at 110-102.

Led by Russell's 13 points, Golden State opened a 33-27 first quarter lead, but the Lakers

NEVER TRUST the weather, especially at Pebble Beach in January. After the first round of the Bing Crosby Pro-Am was washed away Thursday, rain reappeared Friday and so did umbrellas as Johnny Miller (above) tees off

Lakewood pulls away from St. Anthony at gun, 68-60

By KEN PIVERNETZ Staff Writer

Willard Foerster was more than happy Friday night to retract part of an earlier statement that his Lakewood High team hadn't been able to "put anyone away" in the fourth quarter.

But it was St. Anthony, not Lakewood, that faded in the final moments as the Lancers secured a 68-60 victory over the visiting Saints — only the third setback in 13 games for Jack Errion's team.

Considering Lakewood must contend with higher-scoring Mark Wullemeier and his Troy High teammates today on TV (channel 4, noon), the Lancers couldn't have picked a better time than Friday night to turn in their most satisfying win in a 7-5 season.

That's one more victory than Lakewood managed all last year and it was also Foerster's 29th win on the varsity level combining his long tenure at Poly before moving over to Lakewood this past fall.

"It was a win we needed," admitted Foerster, "if for no other reason than we didn't lose our poise in the late going. It was the type of game we've had go against us more than once."

The final eight-point margin was misleading. The teams were never separated by more than four points until the final 3:40 when reserve Rob Williams took a pass from Guy King and converted it into an easy basket to put the Lancers ahead, 59-54.

Terrence Carney brought the Saints to within three points, but over the last three minutes Lakewood enjoyed a 9-4 spurt to lock up the victory.

The Saints were treading thin ice in the last seven minutes after center Don Smith had been called for his fifth personal, reaching in on Dennis Heaton.

Smith had been the most effective Saint in close to the basket with 17 points but spent more than four minutes on the bench in foul trouble as did leading scorer Brian Lenzen.

Lenzen, shadowed closely by Dave Lewis, then Williams, managed only 13 points—only three free throws the final two quarters.

King matched his season high of 21 points to lead a balanced Lakewood attack that also had Lewis (18) and Heaton (12) in double figures.

The 6-5 King operated effectively within a 10-foot range of the basket in the first half, the Saints have

McCord in charge at Crosby

Combined News Service

PEBBLE BEACH — Young Gary McCord of Riverside, who made more than $80,000 on three mini tours the last two years before earning his PGA playing card last September, shot an unbelievable seven-under-par 65 at Cypress Point Friday for the first-round lead in the $185,000 Bing Crosby National Pro-Am.

The 25-year-old McCord, who failed in two previous tries to win a playing card, had a string of six consecutive birds from the eighth through the 13th holes, sinking putts from 40 feet on 12 to three feet on 8 as he made the tour at soggy and wet Cypress Point with its many exposed ocean holes in 33-32.

"Unbelievable is all I can say of the round," bubbled the good-looking McCord who won the 1970 NCAA college division title while serving as team captain at UC Riverside.

"I stroked the ball well and everything seemed to go in the hole," McCord, who played in mini tours in Florida, Georgia and California before competing in his first PGA event at the Disney World last month, held a two-stroke lead on Lanny Wadkins, who had a five-under 67 at Cypress, and Barney Thompson of Barbourville, W.Va., another graduate from the mini tour circuit who had a five-under 67 at tougher Pebble Beach.

THE BIRDIE-BURST came to an end on the 14th green where McCord missed a 12-foot putt to the left. "I'd started counting how many birdies I'd had in a row and I guess I choked," McCord said.

His only bogey came on the tough 16th, a 217-yard par three over the ocean that offers a safe shot to the left of the green. He took the safe way and failed to get it up and down. He carded eight birds in all.

Wadkins, who won $193,830 last year to place fifth on the money list, had six birds and one bogey. Thompson, like McCord a 25-year-old, had five birds and no bogies.

Next with a four-under 68 was U.S. Open champ Johnny Miller while young Vic Regalado of Tijuana and Dave Eichelberger, who won nearly $60,000 last year, were in with three-under 69s.

Jack Nicklaus, who won the last two Crosby titles in sudden death playoffs, also was at Cypress Friday but the best he could do was a two-over 74 that left him eight shots off the lead. It was Jack's first round of golf since he won the Disney World last Dec. 1 for his seventh title of 1973.

GARY PLAYER, staging a comeback after a year of physical problems, shot a one-under 71 at Pebble while Bruce Crampton, runnerup to Nicklaus in money winnings last year, had a 73 at Cypress and Tom Weiskopf, third in money in 1973, had a 73 at Pebble.

Billy Casper had a 74.

Rain Thursday delayed the start of the tournament, first of the 1974 PGA tour, by a day. Early starters Friday played on a contrasting scene of snow on the nearby hills, bright sunshine and a pounding surf.

It rained later in the day Friday and by the time the last man finished, the temperature had dipped under 40 degrees.

COLOR HOT ROD AS THE EMCEE

Hot Rod Hundley, color commentator for the NBA Game of the Week, will serve as master of ceremonies at the 18th Long Beach Century Club sports award banquet at the Lafayette Hotel Jan. 24.

It was previously announced that Mack Calvin, star guard of the Carolina Cougars and former Poly High, Long Beach City College and USC standout, will be recipient of the Athlete of the Year award.

Hundley burst onto the American sports scene as a college all-America at West Virginia University in the mid-1950's, then spent six years with the Lakers, both in Minneapolis and Los Angeles. He was renowned as much for his antics on and off the court as his playing ability.

The 39-year-old Hundley went into television broadcasting shortly after his retirement and now is the color commentator with the Phoenix Suns as well as on the Saturday Game of the Week on CBS. He also broadcasts some college games.

Hundley, an accomplished after-dinner speaker, is a member of Sports Illustrated's speakers bureau. He spends most of the off-season on speaking assignments or operating basketball clinics in the South.

FRESNO SNOWED IN, 49ERS OUT

Last season, Fresno State coach Ed Gregory wriggled and writhed and watched his team struggle to a 1-11 record in the Pacific Coast Athletic Assn.

He is off to a worse start this year. To be more precise, he isn't starting at all.

Today's scheduled PCAA game between Gregory's Bulldogs and Long Beach State, due for a 1 p.m. tipoff at the Long Beach Arena, was cancelled by conference officials late Friday night when it became apparent Fresno State could not keep its appointment.

The Bulldogs were snowbound — in the desert, of all places.

No announcement was made when the game would be made up, only that it had been postponed indefinitely.

The game was also scheduled to be telecast live by KTLA, Channel 5.

This was to have been Fresno's conference opener and they carried a 9-12 record before they became bogged down somewhere in the vicinity of Barstow Friday night.

at 9 a.m. but were halted at Bakersfield because Interstate 5 was impassable. The team's first alternative was to return to Fresno and book passage on the lone flight out of the city bound for Los Angeles, but the United flight was sold out. The California Highway Patrol advised the Bulldogs to proceed to Barstow and approach Los Angeles through the Cajon Pass. That route was also blocked Friday night and it was snowing heavily in the Barstow area, too. That condition precluded Gregory herding his team to Las Vegas and trying to catch a flight from the gambling spa.

Gregory was to have checked in with conference officials early this morning to see if last minute arrangements could be made to get his squad to Long Beach, but he advised conference officials late Friday that his situation appeared hopeless, and the game was postponed.

The 49ers, 10-1 for the season and 1-0 in the PCAA, were hopeful of extending their home court winning streak to 71.

Instead they wound up with a snow-out, presumably a first for Long Beach State athletics.

Sharks break streak

Win game, but lose owner

By AL LARSON
Staff Writer

Let's sing out a belated Happy New Year for some guys who really need it.

Bogged down with their worst losing streak of the season, the Sharks finally smiled on the Sharks as they rode the two-goal performance of Marc Tardif to a 4-3 triumph over Edmonton Friday night before an announced World Hockey Assn. crowd of 4,087 in the L.A. Sports Arena.

Not only had the Sharks lost five in a row and seven of their last eight, but they'd plunged into last place in the WHA West.

HOWEVER, they did lose in one respect — their new owner.

Prior to the match, a Sharks spokesman issued a prepared statement: The Leonard Bloom-Larry Daniels deal has not been finalized so we have no further word on the ownership at this time.

"We've called off our press conference for Monday at which time we were going to introduce Larry Daniels to the media. The trustees did not vote on the proposed sale as expected at this week's league meeting in St. Paul."

Dennis Murphy, president of the WHA, said, "We're at the stage in the league now where we want to make sure we have the right buyers. Right now we don't want a problem created by another problem."

"Daniels broke the story in the paper early and now the lawyers are arguing over the wordage," Dennis said. "It's a normal thing. I've got to check his (Daniels') background to see if he's got all the financial backing he says he has. We should have it all settled in the next two weeks or so."

Shark general manager Terry Slater ducked getting caught up in the ownership squabble. "I didn't say anything to the team before the match about the ownership deal not going through. I just gave the players their checks. That made them happy."

However, Edmonton has troubles, too. The loss not only prevented it from moving into a tie for first place in the West with the Oilers, but the Oilers were skating without their leading scorer, Jim Harrison, who went on strike.

THE 26-year-old forward is demanding a 10-year contract and presently sitting at home in Edmonton.

The Sharks can be thankful that Tardif and Gerry Odrowski, who represented L.A. in Thursday night's All-Star game, didn't stay home.

Tardif drilled in his 15th and 16th goals of the season while defenseman Odrowski assisted on a pair of goals to help the Sharks improve their season record to 14-24 for 28 points and their home rink mark to 8-11.

After falling behind 2-0 on goals by Rusty Pate-naude and Ron Climie, the Sharks struggled back when J.P. LeBlanc connected with his 7th of the year to cut the gap to 2-1 after one period.

Steve Sutherland's power goal squared matter with 2:57 clapsed in the middle period.

Trojans, Bruins initiate Pac-8 season

Boyd is happy, but . . . Husky coach sees UCLA soft spots

PULLMAN, Wash. (Special)—Happiness for Bob Boyd would be a sweep of USC's basketball invasion of Washington.

"I'm happy with our record and the way we've been playing," said the Trojan coach Friday. "But now we're into the Pacific-8 Conference schedule where every game has more meaning."

"I don't buy the talk that Washington State isn't a good basketball team and I'm frightened with the way Washington has been playing."

Boyd's Trojans face Washington State today at 3 p.m. The game will be televised in Southern California on Ch. 5.

On Monday, the Trojans travel to Seattle for a game with Washington. "We've played well and beaten some good teams," said Boyd, whose club won the All-College Tournament in Oklahoma City last weekend. "Oral Roberts was a good team and I thought we did real well in beating them in the championship game."

Boyd had only one complaint. "We have had a tendency to get a good lead and then blow it," he said. "Some coaches might say they know exactly the reason, but I won't make that claim. It may be due to a lack of concentration, but I'm not sure."

The Trojans, 9-1 and ranked seventh in the nation by United Press International and 11th by The Associated Press, will not have the services of Boyd's son, Bill, who has a stress fracture on a leg.

"The doctors put Bill in a cast and he'll be out two or three weeks," said Boyd.

SEATTLE (Special) — Three weeks ago the thought on everyone's mind was whether North Carolina State could snap UCLA's impressive winning streak.

Coaches faced with meeting the Bruins later in the season were outwardly cheering for UCLA. Washington's Marv Harshman was no exception.

"I said at the time I'd just as soon UCLA didn't lose until somebody beat them in league, and that's selfish," the Huskies' head coach said Friday.

Tonight it's Harshman's turn. Victory and he and his players go down in basketball history. Lose and they become just a number, No. 84 on the Bruins' list of successive victims.

Harshman is thankful to be challenging the perennial national champions on the Pacific-8 Conference's opening weekend and not a couple of weeks hence.

"Bill Walton is playing better than I thought he would coming into his senior year," said Harshman, "but I don't think UCLA has developed that real team cohesiveness that's been kind of its trademark the past number of years.

"People who have watched them play do not think they are as smooth a team. Keith Wilkes is still doing well, but there are still some answers to be found on the wings."

"Dave Meyers has great talent and does his thing, but I don't think they have the consistent shooting in a couple of areas that they've had in other years."

The Huskies are 7-3 compared with the Bruins' 8-0 record. Washington surprised skeptics last week by winning the Far West Classic, beating West Virginia (96-79), Oregon (83-77) and Oregon State (65-56).

The Huskies expected major problems in the backcourt this season with all-conference Louie Nelson graduated, but sophomore Clarence Ramsey and senior Ron Williams have performed spectacularly.

Forward Ray Price was honorable mention all-Pac 8 as a junior and has been able to concentrate more on scoring than rebounding with the addition of Larry Pounds from Pasadena, CC.

Pounds averaged 18 points and eight rebounds in the Far West Classic to earn MVP honors.

Washington's real problem is at center where Harshman alternates a pair of stringbeans, 210-pound soph Lars Hansen and 195-pound freshman James Edwards.

They will be hard-pressed to contain the wondrous Walton, who leads the Bruins in scoring (19.1) and rebounds (17.3).

LBCC in final Metro tuneup

By JIM MANGAN
Staff Writer

A Long Beach City College basketball team which thinks it is pretty good may find out for sure tonight.

The Vikings travel to Fullerton for a 7:30 game, final test before Metropolitan Conference play begins Tuesday at Valley.

Nearing the end of an 18-game practice slate, coach Bill Fraser says his squad is ready for Metro play which he plans to win and then continue towards the state championships.

Long Beach carries a 13-5 mark and 11th spot in state JC rankings into the contest against the Hornets who are 11-5 and 18th on the same poll.

Forwards Bob Holgate (17.4) and Jeff Hutton (14.9) pace the Fullerton squad which can just about match the Vikes in height and which, according to a Fullerton spokesman, "is 200 per cent better than last year."

The Hornets are part of a small minority who claim an edge over Long Beach in recent play, beating the Vikings 77-74 earlier this year and splitting a pair last season.

On the other hand, tonight's foe has dropped two this year to Bakersfield, a team which LBCC handled easily, 112-86.

In all fairness to the Hornets, Wednesday's 105-92 loss at Bakersfield occurred without Holgate who was sidelined with the flu.

A trio of proven point producers — center Dan Frost (19.0), forward Dave Hillman (17.0) and guard Cal Wulfsberg (12.4) — will be the nucleus of Fraser's starting combo.

again. Rounding out the first five is guard Tom DeBerry (8.8) and forward Steve Sincoc (9.8), the only freshman.

In addition to polishing his first unit against Fullerton, Fraser will be trying to make up his mind on his first line of reserves.

The LBCC coach has settled on forward Bill Cantwell and guard Dan Marques as two early relievers, but is still undecided on the third from the trio of Pery Collins, Ev Ratliff and Cartier Reedus.

Swann hopes to give East a Hula lesson

HONOLULU (AP) — Lynn Swann and Danny White barely had time to get acquainted, but they'll be looking for each other in today's 28th annual Hula Bowl game.

Swann, the all-America wide receiver from USC, played in the Rose Bowl on New Year's Day and didn't join the West team.

CHANNEL 7, 1 p.m.

until Thursday. But he's expected to be a favorite target for Arizona state quarterback White.

"Swann is a fantastic athlete," said West coach Frank Kush of Arizona State. "He's got to be comparable to any receiver I've ever seen."

Swann found 11 familiar faces on the West team, including teammate Artimus Parker, a defensive back, and 10 other players from the potent Pacific 8 Conference.

While Kush worked to fit Swann into the game plan, East coach Bo Schembechler of Michigan welcomed two late arrivals — linebacker Randy Gradishar and offensive tackle John Hicks of Ohio State.

Despite the hard feelings left over from Ohio State's selection as the Big Ten's Rose Bowl entry, Schembechler and the three Michigan players in the Hula Bowl professed no ill will toward the Buckeyes.

"I don't have a grudge against Ohio State," they're a great team," said all-America defensive tackle Dave Gallagher. "It's the Big Ten I don't like for the way they handled the thing."

Another big bowl for Siemon

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Jeff Siemon was a freshman linebacker at Stanford University when the Minnesota Vikings played the Kansas City Chiefs in the Super Bowl four years ago.

"I hadn't seen too many of their games on television that year," said Siemon, now the Viking middle linebacker, "but I know they crushed quite a few teams and scored in the 50s a couple of times. I was very surprised that Kansas City won. . . . I was awed by some of the things they did offensively because the Vikings were favored to win."

The Chiefs, using coach Hank Stram's "Offense of the 70s," crushed the Vikings 23-7.

Siemon continued his Stanford career, playing in two Rose Bowl victories and was drafted by the Vikings on the first round in 1972.

"I was very surprised to be drafted by the Vikings," said Siemon. "I immediately thought of the cold. I knew the Vikings had a veteran team and I didn't know if there would be a place for me."

BUT SIEMON already is a standout in his second season, and will be a part of the Super Bowl when the Vikings meet the Miami Dolphins Jan. 13 at Houston.

"We haven't been thinking about the Super Bowl until this week," said Siemon, a 6-foot-2, 230-pound linebacker. "I know the feeling now is that we have a great degree of desire to win. I know the older guys on the team realize what it meant to lose to Kansas City. It is the biggest win or the biggest loss in football."

Siemon, a Rochester, Minn., native who grew up in California, broke into the Viking lineup the final eight games of the 1972 season and was firmly established as the No. 1 middle linebacker when the Vikings traded Lonnie Warwick to Atlanta before the 1973 season.

Viking coach Bud Grant tabbed Siemon for stardom even before training camp opened with the statement that Siemon was "a budding superstar. When he gets a better feel for the style of play he'll be one of the finest linebackers because of the ability and speed he possesses and the leverage he can put on a ball carrier."

"The experience of playing a full year and the chance to take part in a full training camp makes a big difference," said Siemon, who made a key interception in last Sunday's 27-10 victory over Dallas in the National Conference final. "You probably learn more from experience in your first and second seasons than you do the rest of your career."

THE SUPER BOWL contest against Miami will mark the fourth time, twice in the preseason, that the Vikings have met the Dolphins (the past two years).

Siemon did not see major action when the Vikings lost to the Dolphins 19-17 in the 1972 preseason nor in a 16-14 loss to Miami in the regular season.

But he turned in the defensive play of the game when he picked up a Marlin Briscoe fumble, ran 35 yards and set up a Fred Cox field goal at the final gun to give the Vikings a 20-17 exhibition decision in 1973.

"The Miami game was an important game, personally," recalled Siemon. "I had the opportunity to be there when the ball bounced in my hands. It was my first fortunate break this year."

It was not the last, as Siemon played a central role in Minnesota's claim of allowing the fewest points in the National Conference, 168.

"I know Miami did a good job of running against us," said Siemon. "I don't have to be reminded about Larry Csonka, Mercury Morris and Jim Kiick."

New coach, new offense at Oregon Can Read right the Ducks?

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Oregon's new coach, Don Read, thinks a new offense might help the Ducks improve on the 2-9 record they made last season under Dick Enright, who was dismissed Friday.

Read, promoted from assistant coach, said at a noon news conference he would install a Veer offense with more emphasis on passing than most teams using the Veer.

Norv Ritchey, director of athletics, announced earlier that Enright was through as head coach. He said the university would honor Enright's contract, which has two years to run, but he didn't know what Enright would do during that time.

"I was not happy with the direction being given to the football program at Oregon," Ritchey said. "In Don Read, I feel we are very fortunate to have a man from our own staff who is well respected."

Enright, 39, had a 4-7 record with Oregon going into the past season after his first year with the university.

Some critics complained his teams sometimes seemed unorganized during games—occasionally having the wrong number of players on the field, apparently functioning part of the time without benefit of quick decisions on key strategy.

There also were complaints that recruiting efforts following the disappointing season lacked direction, said a member of the athletic department who wouldn't be identified.

Read said the Veer offense "lends itself to both the pass and the run in a very colorful way. It's the kind of offense fans get excited about."

Ritchey said Read, 40, could reorganize his staff if he chose.

Read said he would interview staff members through today and probably would keep those who wanted to stay with possibly two exceptions.

Enright played for Southern California and was drafted by the Rams of the NFL, but ended his playing career because of injuries suffered in an auto accident.

He coached at Gardena High School, where he had been a player, and joined the University of Oregon staff in 1970 as offensive line coach.

Read, former head football coach and athletic director at Portland State University, has been an assistant for the past two seasons. He was the only winning football coach in PSU's history with a four-year record of 20-19.

Read attended University of Oregon as a freshman then transferred to Sacramento State in California, where he graduated in 1959.

He began his football coaching career at Placer, Calif., High School as an assistant in 1960, and worked two years as offensive backfield coach at Humboldt State College in Arcata, Calif.

NEW YORK (UPI) — O. J. Simpson, No. 1 in the National Football League's Record books, is also No. 1 in the minds of the voters.

Simpson, who established a single-season rushing record of 2,003 yards this season, today was selected unanimously as United Press International's American Conference player of the year.

Simpson, who helped the Buffalo Bills to their best record (9-5) since 1966, was selected by all 39 sports writers—three from each conference city—who participated in the voting.

The former Heisman trophy winner from Southern California, who had his problems during his first few seasons, put it all together this year to earn the award for the second successive year. He set a single-game rushing record of 250 yards against New England in the season opener, carried a record 39 times in another game against Kansas City and then capped a brilliant season with a 203-yard performance against the New York Jets in the season finale to go over the 2,000-yard mark.

Modus Vivendi captures La Centinela Woodland Pines choice at S' Anita Stretch-running Woodland Pines, upset winner of the $34,300 Palos Verdes Handicap on opening-day, and the indelible nine-year-old, Pataha Prince, will tangle today in the 11th running of the $48,950 Sierra Madre Handicap at Santa Anita.

Post-time for the first of nine races will be 12:30 p.m.

Opposing Woodland Pines and Pataha Prince in the turf course sprint of about 6 1/2 furlongs will be a dozen rivals — High Protein, I'm Ed, Isle Bet (entrymate of Pataha Prince), Briartic, Selecting, Dawn Flight, Captain Cee Jay, Fortunate Harbor, Against The Snow, Restless Runner, Filitosa and Star Of Kuwait.

If the field remains intact, it will be competing for a first prize of $30,950.

Woodland Pines, a five-year-old son of Lt. Stevens, took advantage of a scorching pace in the Palos Verdes Handicap to charge from out of the pack and defeat longshot Tragic Isle by a length in 1:09 flat. The bay horse carries 119 pounds today, four more than he packed in the Palos Verdes. Don Pierce, a winner of four stakes in the initial six days of the new meeting, again has the call from trainer Cecil Jolly.

Amazing Pataha Prince already has been successful in the circumstances of the Sierra Madre Handicap, having won a turf sprint on opening-day by a length in 1:14 flat over Shady Fellow. This victory, his 10th in 23 starts in 1973, boosted his earnings for the year to more than $90,000, a great feat considering his age and testimony to the ability of his trainer, Bobby Frankel. Laftit Pincey will be aboard the gelded son of Strong Ruler, who now ranks third among all-time Washington-bred horses. Pataha Prince carries 119 pounds.

Highweight of 121 pounds will be hefted by Briartic, who was seventh under 123 pounds in the Palos Verdes after encountering traffic problems. Steve Valdez has the mount on the Canadian-bred son of Neartie.
